

DEAD IN NORTHWEST FOREST FIRES MAY REACH 1,000

AWFUL TALE FROM FIRE SWEEPED LAND

Vast Region Minnesota and Canada Prey of Forest and Bush Fires and Hundreds Perish.

THE DEAD ARE STREWN OVER THE COUNTRY

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 10.—It may be possible that the death list attending the forest fires along the border will reach a total of one thousand, but this estimate may be far too high.

Every settler in this district bounded by the Rainy river and Lake of the Woods on the north, to twenty-five miles south of Fort Frances, Ont., and from Spooner to Baudette, on the east to Warroad, Minn., on the west, who is not accounted for is certain to be dead, as there was no escape.

For a distance of fifty miles from Baudette and the Rainy river west to Warroad, the woods was a solid mass of fire Sunday.

Baudette is only a charred remnant of a town. Spooner is entirely wiped off the earth. Cedar Spur, Graceton, Pitt, Swift and Roosevelt, mere hamlets, are destroyed.

Some Known Dead.

The dead so far as known:

JULIUS BRATTEN, homesteader, wife and five children.

RHULIN, wife and seven children.

GEORGE WEAVER, homesteader.

BARBEAU, wife and six children.

CHARLES WEST, homesteader.

CLIFFIN, homesteader, wife and five children.

TOM BARR, homesteader, living near Pitt.

MACUMBER, wife and six children.

Three unidentified dead along Rapid river.

MATTHEW BRENNAN, who lived near Rapid river.

JOHN COLVIN, wife and three children.

J. C. O'NEIL, wife and seven children.

MRS. PEARL BROWN'S infant child.

MRS. BROWN, badly burned.

JULIUS BOND, wife and children. CARLO LORRENZO, homesteader. WALTER FERGUSON. EDWARD RULIN, wife and seven children.

Nine bodies were seen on the Canadian Northern tracks by women who mounted horses and fled down the railway tracks.

Four unidentified dead at Root house, west of Pitt, including one man two women and a baby.

The fire still threatens the few houses along the river in Old Baudette. The Engler company's men gave up hope of saving their property two miles down the river and sent all their horses to a place of safety. The fire surrounds the property and the smoke is so thick it cannot be learned whether it is burning or not. This mill is valued at $250,000 and was only completed last August.

Fire Wardens Sworn In.

In Rainy River 100 deputy fire wardens have been sworn in and divided into groups of ten have started to fight the fire from all sides. Another wind, such as came up Friday, would seal the fate of this town. Tired and worn out destitute men, women and children roam the streets.

The business men of Spooner and Baudette, however, are showing a fine spirit of hopefulness and as soon as the people are provided for will organize plans to build the two towns as one on a better plan than that of the past. Mayor Williams, of Baudette, called the business men of those towns together on the streets here today and an organization was effected to distribute all possible supplies to the destitute.

A special train arrived on the Minnesota and International railroad bearing provisions.

The burned district will be placed under martial law.

CROSSING CLAIMS TWO MORE LIVES

Archie Anderson and Reed Haas Killed at Columbia City.

DROVE IN FRONT OF FLYING CARS

Both Bodies Mangled and Horse Killed—Wagon Demolished.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Columbia City, Ind., Oct. 10.—Archie Anderson, twenty-one years old and single, and Reed Haas, nine years old, were instantly killed here about 7 o'clock this morning when an east-bound Pennsylvania train running at sixty-five miles an hour struck a mail wagon in which both were riding.

Anderson was thrown 200 feet, his head was crushed and one of his legs was broken.

The front of Haas' skull was torn away, his head crushed, both legs were broken and his right shoulder crushed. The wagon was demolished and the body of the boy was picked up 225 feet from the crossing at which the accident occurred.

The horse they were driving was thrown 150 feet and the grade crossing is the same at which seven people had previously been killed in as many years.

Anderson a Substitute.

Anderson was a substitute rural free delivery mail carrier and he and his youthful companion had left the home of Wm. H. Haas, the regular carrier, a short time before they were killed. The mail was coming in from his farm home to school and rode with Anderson. The dead boy was a son of William Haas.

Neither of the occupants of the mail wagon evidently heard the approaching train, as they whipped up their horse as they approached the railroad in spite of the wild gesticulations of the watchman, who made every effort to halt them, before they got on the tracks.

The wagon was squarely in the middle of the track when it was struck and death was instantaneous in both cases. The mutilated bodies were viewed by the coroner and then removed to a local undertaking establishment.

View Not Obstructed.

While the crossing is regarded as a dangerous one, the view of the occupants of the wagon was unobstructed this morning, as there were no cars or any other obstructions to prevent them from seeing the fast flying train bearing down upon them.

The watchman saw the wagon in plenty of time to have prevented the accident had the occupants of the mail wagon taken the precaution to look for him.

He ran toward them and waved his flag, but thinks that he was not observed as the driver did not even hesitate before he drove upon the tracks to have his life snuffed out with that of his companion. So bent was the watchman on saving the lives of the people in the wagon that he barely got out of the way of the train as it whizzed past him.

Train Was Stopped.

The train was running as the second section of No. 6 and is known as

TAKES ISSUE WITH HIS FRIEND TAFT

In Arkansas Speech Colone Favors Federal Drainage of Swamps.

TAFT DECLARES AGAINST SCHEME

Roosevelt Guest of the Arkansas State Fair at Hot Springs.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 10.—Theodore Roosevelt took issue with President Taft on the subject of reclamation of the swamp lands in a speech which he delivered here today at the Arkansas state fair. Colonel Roosevelt declared that the national government should do all it legitimately could to assist in the work of draining these lands, while President Taft in his speech at the National Conservation Congress in St. Paul Sept. 6, said that he was opposed to the idea of having the government do this work. Colonel Roosevelt was applauded warmly by the great crowd which heard his speech. He was speaking in a state where there are millions of acres of fertile land which must be drained in order to be susceptible to cultivation and in which the drainage question long has been an issue of great public interest.

ARRIVAL IN HOT SPRINGS.

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 10.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt arrived here today at 8:30 to pay a visit to the Arkansas state fair and deliver an address in the afternoon. He was accompanied by Governor Donoghue and United States Senator Clarke, who met him at Memphis and escorted him into Arkansas.

Great throngs of people welcomed Colonel Roosevelt upon his arrival. Mounted police and troops flied about the depot and when the reception committee escorted him from his private car the crowd gave vent to cheers and calls for a speech.

Colonel Roosevelt was escorted to a hotel, where he held a public reception. He met many of his former rough rider comrades, who greeted him enthusiastically.

In Parade to Fair Grounds.

At the conclusion of the reception a parade was formed to go to the fair grounds, a mile and a half distant. All along the line of the parade Colonel Roosevelt was greeted with cheers.

When Colonel Roosevelt reached the fair grounds he was welcomed by one of the largest crowds he has seen since he left New York. There were 1,500 school children who formed a living flag and sang patriotic songs to symbolize the peaceful relations between the north and the south. Four doves were released by two girls, one dressed in blue and the other in grey, and flowers were presented by young women to a company of union veterans and a company of Confederate veterans.

After delivering his address Colonel Roosevelt held a general public reception.

An automobile ride around the city will conclude the program for the day.

HOPE FOR MINERS NOW IMPRISONED

Driving Plenty of Fresh Air Into Shaft of Starkville Mine.

REAT DISASTER OUT IN COLORADO

Explosion Pens Half Hundred Men and All May Have Perished.

Starkville, Col., Oct. 10.—High hope spread over this stricken mining camp this morning when news was brought out of the Starkville mine, where two score or more miners are entombed from an explosion last Saturday that fans providing pure air to the mine had been put in operation and that the imprisoned men would be located within the day unless efforts of rescuers were further blocked by the wreckage.

This information was given out officially by State Mine Inspector John E. Jones. Never over enthusiastic as a prospector, Jones based his opinion upon the fact that a double force was working to clear the air in the mine. The portable fan has been stationed well within the short cut of the Starkville mine while the fan in the main entrance to the Englewood mine has been reversed. Both are working together on the same objective.

In addition to clearing the Starkville mine of the bad air, Inspector Jones said it was being fanned away from the extreme southern workings of the mine and held captive so as to prevent its spreading to these sections where the entombed men are supposed to be.

Location of Eleven Known.

It is known that at least eleven miners at the time of the explosion Saturday night were a full mile from the first cross through which the bad air in the Starkville mine is supposed to be floating into its sister mine.

Inspector Jones today said these men were alive and perfectly safe unless a cave in crushed out their lives or the black damp had reached them while fans were being set up. Afterdamp is sensitive to changes in the temperature as was indicated yesterday when rescuers were driven suffering from the east slope of the mine after advancing less than 200 feet. Previous to this the men had traversed the 2,000 feet of this cross cut to its junction point with the west slope only to be forced to return by encountering a blockade of wreckage. When returning to the east portal, it was first noticed that the air was bad and the rescuers hastened out. Even the helmet men, with their modern protective apparatus including reservoirs of oxygen to supply the lungs with pure air, could do but little, and once were themselves overcome when their oxygen became exhausted and were rescued with the greatest difficulty by miners.

Word came from the mine at midnight that the portable fan near the entrance to the east slope or short cut of the mine was working with precision and the deadly after-damp had been scattered and the belief was expressed that the interior would be gradually relieved of this menace.

May Find Them Living.

Today renewed efforts to reach the entombed men were inaugurated, part of the plan being, it was announced,

SUPREME COURT HAS SAD SESSION

It Meets With Three Seats of Bench Vacant by Illness or Death.

JUSTICE HARLAN IN CHIEF PLACE

Governor Hughes Takes a Seat With Court for First Time.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Ceremonies marking the advent of a new judge of the law and the demise of a famous jurist who had gone before him constituted today's solemn business of the supreme court of the United States. Chas. E. Hughes, of New York, donned the robes of office as associate justice with all the formalities designed to give dignity to the court and then with a few words of sorrow expressed by the senior associate justice, John Marshall Harlan, the court adjourned until tomorrow out of respect to the memory of the late chief justice, Melvin W. Fuller.

The little court room was crowded with persons especially interested in the opening ceremonies.

The administration of the oath to the new justice consumed but a few moments, then Justice Harlan announced the death of the chief justice and spoke of his distinguished services to the country. He concluded with the remark that the memory of his famous life would "ever remain as a priceless heritage to his countrymen."

Exactly eight minutes after convening the court adjourned.

No Permanent Head.

The death of Chief Justice Fuller left the court without a permanent head, while the passing away of Justice Brewer and the illness of Justice Moody, whose resignation becomes effective Nov. 30, reduced the active membership to six.

One noticeable result was the change in the seating arrangement of the justices. This provided for Justice Harlan, the senior member of the court, to move from the place of honor he has occupied for years at the right of Chief Justice Fuller to the chair of the late chief justice himself, in recognition of his having become temporarily the presiding justice of the court. The seats of the other members were changed so that Justice White was assigned to the seat to the right of the presiding justice and Justice McKenna to the left. Farther to the right was Justice Holmes' chair, while on the other side were chairs for Justices Day and Lurton.

Chair There for Hughes.

Next to Justice Holmes was a vacant chair for Justice Moody, and on the extreme right was the seat Charles E. Hughes, who is expected to become an associate justice, is to occupy. This arrangement was designed to be effective until a new chief justice was appointed. Although nearly 725 cases are on the docket, the largest number probably in the history of the court at the opening of a term, the program for the day was limited by the usual circumstances. Had the president of the United States been in the city the court would have adjourned to pay its respects to him. This left the day to be devoted exclusively to the ceremonies attending the swearing in of Justice Hughes and those marking the death of Chief Justice Fuller. Tomorrow the court will begin in earnest the work of the year.

NEW GOVERNMENT HAS A HARD TASK

Must Quell the Excesses Following Extinction of the Monarchy.

RUFFIANS MENACE THE PORTUGUESE

Religious Orders Seem to Be Special Objects of Attack.

Lisbon, Oct. 10.—The revolutionary leaders, having overthrown the monarchy are now confronted with the scarcely less serious task of putting an end to excesses on the part of the rough element of their own followers who, having had a taste of mob rule, are prone to continue lawlessness. The decree of summary banishment for the religious orders gave excuse for brutal outrages against the clergy.

The provisional government has now recognized the seriousness of the situation and today the police adopted severe measures to prevent the population sacking the religious establishments and to check the demonstrations against the religionists pending the expulsion. Reports that the clericals were carrying on a guerilla warfare from the windows of their establishments inflamed the public sentiment against the religionists, many of whom were chased from their churches and convents.

Violated a Convent.

The mob which battered down the doors of the convent in the Rua de Quelhas was led by fanatics and a gang of ruffians who seized occasion to destroy everything in sight. Images and statues were wrenched from the niches in the chapel, altars were wrecked, furniture was broken and the sacerdotal vestments were carried off by the rioters. Later the police recovered the greater part of the vestments.

The districts in which are located Santos churches and the French legation was startled by the crack of rifles and at once a report was circulated that the religionists were firing from the windows of the church. The crowd flocked to the scene but the military arrived in time to protect the church and the legation from possible violence. The discovery of secret subterranean tunnels at the monasteries set afloat rumors that many monks were still hiding under ground awaiting a favorable opportunity to emerge and continue the fight against the new regime. To satisfy the crowd the military initiated subterranean explorations and in the instance dug a trench to locate the suspected tunnel.

Only Toward Monks and Nuns.

As was the case at the time of the Barcelona riots, the popular feeling seems to be restricted to the monks and nuns and does not manifest itself toward the secular clergy.

With doubtful expediency the bodies of Prof. Bombarda and Admiral Reis, the revolutionaries, remained exposed at the city hall. The republican flag hangs from the casbets between which a bust typifying the republic is draped in black.

Throughout Sunday the city was in festival garb. Thousands came in from the country districts and visited the scene of the recent fighting. They wore medals in the form of republican emblems and carried improvised republican flags. The bands played the republican hymn and the artillery fired salutes in honor of the members of the revolutionary committee who drove from place to place amid the cheers of the populace.

Orders Release of Cardinal.

Dr. Costa, the minister of justice today ordered the release of Cardinal Joseph Sebastian Netto, former patriarch of Lisbon, who had been seized and ordered expelled from the country. Costa explained that the real purpose of the arrest was to protect the cardinal from possible outrage.

The minister declared that several monasteries and convents belonging to Portuguese or foreign orders were veritable arsenals and that the activ-

VERDICT ON WRECK IS FILED BY CORONER

Variance in Height of Car Floors is Criticized at Bluffton.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 10.—Coroner Herman Thoma, coroner of Wells county, this morning filed his verdict in the Kingsland trolley horror, and the finding places blame for the disaster upon Motorman Corkwell and Conductor Wilson, of the southbound car.

The coroner also calls particular attention to the variance in the height of the floors of the two cars, that of the heavier limited car being almost a foot higher than the floor of the smaller car in which the passengers were riding. He expressed the belief that with the floors of the cars of equal height the loss of life could not have been so great.

Wilson Gives New Bond.

Conductor Del Wilson, against whom an indictment charging involuntary manslaughter was returned by the grand jury Saturday, has given a new bond in the sum of $1,000, the sureties being practically the same as upon the first bond. Motorman Corkwell was also indicted with Wilson, but the warrant will not be served upon him until he has recovered sufficiently to leave Hope hospital at Fort Wayne. The cases will not come up for hearing until the November term of court.

In his finding today Coroner Thoma returns one general verdict for all the victims, and in addition makes specific mention of each individual case.

CORKWELL IS IMPROVING.

Motorman's Mental Condition, Said to Be More Encouraging.

Physicians in attendance upon B. F. Corkwell, the motorman injured in the Kingsland wreck, stated today that the man is now making more rapid progress toward recovery. He has not been at any time since the accident completely rational, and the effects of the brain concussion are still manifest in a disordered mental condition. It is impossible, physicians say, to accurately forecast the outcome of these cases, but the gain in Corkwell's physical condition, which is now said to be almost perfect, leads to the hope that his mentality will also be completely restored after a time.

LEIKAUF SAFE OPEN AND THE CASH MISSING

Thief Got $250 by Working the Combination—Judy Arrested.

Charles Judy, formerly a driver for the Brown Trucking company, was picked up by Detective Sergeants Pappert and Hall today and is being held for the theft of some hides while an investigation is being made of a safe robbery in the Leikauf packing house, that netted the thief $250 in cash.

Members of the Leikauf firm claim that thirty-three calf hides have been stolen from them which they did not miss for the reason that their establishment was closed up during the time of the summer. These were sold at the Cash establishment on Columbia street.

The safe was opened on Saturday night and the money taken. For some time Judy had been employed about the place to keep it in order and as soon as the safe robbery was discovered he was questioned but denied any connection with it.

The thief knew the combination to the safe and for that reason suspicion fell upon Judy. He acknowledged stealing hides but said he took only fourteen of them.

THE FALL CONVOCATION.

Scottish Rite Reunion to Be Held November 15, 16 and 17.

The program is now in preparation for the annual fall convocation of Scottish Rite Masons, which will be held in this city on November 15, 16 and 17. The Lodge of Perfection will confer its degrees Tuesday afternoon and evening; Darius council on Wednesday afternoon; Emanuel chapter of the Rose Croix on Wednesday evening, and Fort Wayne Consistory on Thursday.

The banquet will occur Wednesday evening between the work of the council and that of the Rose Croix. It is expected that the class will be a very large one.

CO-LABORERS' BIBLE CLASS.

The Co-Laborers' Bible class of Calvary United Brethren church will hold its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Theodore Titus, corner of Thomas and Buchanan streets, on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

AVIATOR ELY ONCE MORE BREAKS HIS AEROPLANE

Sparker Won't Spark and He Lands in a Chicago
Swamp Disastrously.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—A second accident today delayed Eugene Ely, the aviator, in his attempt to fly from Chicago to New York, owing to a dense fog which delayed even the trains. Ely was unable to leave the grounds until 8:23 o'clock. He rose about 15 feet, but had gone only a short distance when he noticed his engine was again missing the spark.

The man bird discovered when he brought his biplane to earth that the long weeds in which he had alighted concealed a ditch. The flimsy covering gave way and the biplane settled into the mud and water. An examination showed the reason the engine had been missing to be a break in the gasoline feed pipe. It was announced that it would be 1 o'clock this afternoon before this damage could be repaired.

Ely started from the Hawthorne race track yesterday at 4:11 p. m. and traveled eleven miles in twelve minutes when a clogged carburetor compelled him to descend.

THE WEATHER.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Indiana—Fair tonight and Tuesday. Slightly rising temperature. Light variable winds, shifting to south.

Ohio—Fair tonight with light frost on lowlands; Tuesday fair with rising temperature; light variable winds tonight shifting to south Tuesday.

Lower Michigan—Fair tonight and Tuesday; warmer tonight and in southeast portion Tuesday; moderate southerly winds becoming variable by Tuesday night.

Illinois—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

ity of the clericals who persisted in obstinate resistance to the advent of the republic, hastened the order of expulsion, which he added, was necessary to tranquillize the public spirit. It is understood all the officers who aided the revolution refused offers of promotion, affirming that they had only done their duty to the nation.

The theater Queen Amelia has been retained the Republic. The government has ordered cable and telegraph companies to refuse to accept or deliver messages in code or cipher.

BARCELONA POWDER MAGAZINE.

Barcelona, Oct. 10.—A state of increasing excitement reigns in Barcelona. The success of the revolution in Portugal appears to have fanned the fire of rebellion that has smoldered since the furious outbreak of a year ago.

There was the greatest animation in the streets today. The people pretend not to notice the patrols and civil guard which are being strengthened gradually in preparation for eventualities on Oct. 13, the anniversary of the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the director of the modern school of Barcelona, who was convicted of having incited last year's revolutionary movement. Gen. Weyler, captain general of Catalonia, admits that the strike of miners here is taking on a revolutionary character. He says his orders are to suppress any active display with a firm hand.

Carry Flowers to Graves of Martyrs.
Yesterday 10,000 stern faced miners marched to the cemetery in the suburbs and placed wreaths upon the tombs of Ferrer and the revolutionist Garcia, who also was executed in consequence of what has become known as "bloody week."

Violent speeches were made by leaders of the miners, who charged the clericals with responsibility for the executions. A spectator who shouted "It was your fault as well as the clericals," was seized by the miners and had been beaten almost to death when he was rescued by the police.

The military and police forced the manifestants to return to Barcelona in small groups.

CIPHER TELEGRAMS BARRED.

Rome, Oct. 10.—Much surprise was expressed at the Vatican this morning when cipher dispatches containing important instructions to the papal nuncio at Lisbon were returned to the explanation that the international bureau of telegraphs at Bern upon the request of the republican government of Portugal had suspended as it is entitled to do by the international convention all ciphered telegraphic communication to Portugal. The prohibition includes messages in code to the diplomatic corps at Lisbon. This action is considered as almost unprecedented by the Vatican and as indicating that the provisional government does not feel its position to be secure.

SPAIN TREMBLES IN FEAR.

Madrid, Oct. 10.—Premier Canalejas' warning to parliament that the agitation of the clerical and anti-clericals among the workmen is liable to plunge Spain into a civil war has not served to ease the mind of the public which daily is discussing the possibility that the flame of revolution will overlap the frontier and engulf their own country.

The reported message of Alejandro Lerroux, chief of the republicans at Barcelona, to Provisional President Braga of Portugal: "Start your revolution. We will take care of ours," is widely printed in the radical press as indicating republican plans for an uprising. The government feels the deepest anxiety at the approach of Thursday, Oct. 13, which is now popularly known as "Ferrer day," when it is feared the manifestations marking the first anniversary of the execution of Prof. Ferrer will develop rioting. All requests for permission to hold Ferrer meetings of protest are being refused. With Thursday passed safely the government considers the worst will be over, as it counts on the absolute loyalty of the army, which in its entirety is held in readiness to stamp out the first spark of rebellion.

ILLHART MUST HAVE KNIFE PROPERLY
PLACEDGreat Stickler for Table
Amenities and Wife
Should Observe.

While Louis Illhart is perfectly content to clean spittoons and scrub floors at the House Mission for a living he is a great stickler for table amenities and insists that his knife and fork must be properly placed at the table.

Gentlemanly insistence on the proper observance of table etiquette prompted him to choke his wife and give her a clout in the eye because after a day's wrestling with a house full of roomers and boarders and a few other small details of making a living for both herself and her husband so belated her mental machinery that she slipped a cog and put Louis's knife where his fork ought to have been and put the reverse English on his fork.

Louis was in the city court for plain drunk and his wife did not want to prosecute him for assault and battery. She wanted peace and said she didn't care what became of her spouse so long as he allows her to go on in her own way and to earn her living after her accustomed fashion.

In ruling on the case Judge Munroe said: "You are the kind of a fellow that somebody ought to take out and strip and take a cat-nine tails and lash from the top of your head to your toes. You are in here for public intoxication and I can give you only $5 and costs but I will certainly do that much. I'm sorry I can't give you six months on top of it." The Illharts live at 330 West Main street.

The Other Cases.
Albert Bench, Dan Ryan and George Robinson were fined $5, $5 and $1 respectively for vagrancy. They were begging on the streets yesterday afternoon and two of them met that same fellow with a bottle who is responsible for all of the Sunday drunks. Anton Lambert and Andy Schleicher were let go on charges of drunkenness and Oscar Jones, who did not show up, was fined $5 and costs.

Mike O'Donnell, held on suspicion, was let go with instructions to get out of town at once.

AWFUL TALE FROM FIRE SWEEPED LAND

Mayor Berg, of International Falls, has appointed a relief committee to arrange for the care of refugees who have reached the town.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DEAD.

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 10.—Men who have just returned from Baudette on a railway motor say that the list of dead in the district back from the track alone will reach 150.

The mayor of Baudette says that seventy-five bodies already have been found and refugees coming in every hour report having seen many bodies in the roads.

FIND BAKED BODIES OF HUMANS.

Rainey River, Ont., Oct. 10.—The terrible results of the Friday, Saturday and Sunday forest fires are beginning to be realized by the disheartened and homeless. Bodies found along the railway track 3 miles west of Baudette were brought here this morning.

There was not a particle of clothing left on any of them save parts of shoes. The bodies had the appearance of having been baked in a red-hot oven. This morning searching parties were organized and went south to relieve suffering and pick up the dead.

It will be days before all the dead can be reached owing to the great trees which have fallen over the roads. These will have to be chopped away before wagons can get through.

Sought Safety in Dug Well.
Max Hendricks came in from his claim, 3 1/2 miles southwest of Baudette and told of thirty persons who were housed in his shack without food. He says when the fire struck his place sixteen of them got into a dry well, 15 feet deep and remained there nearly suffocating from the heat and smoke until the fire had passed. While the fire passed over the well, it veered to the southeast of his house which was not burned. Every other inflammable object on the place was licked up by the flames.

Many settlers got into the Rapid river and saved themselves by wading in the water, although even then their forces were blistered by the heat. Several bodies, which are probably those of the Poulin family were found in a clearing in the woods where they sought safety.

Wheat Dams River.
The bridge which went down at Winter river and carried the Canadian Northern train with it, spilled wheat across the river bed and completely dammed the water. The refugees in the calouses had a narrow escape.

Along the Canadian Northern track on the river side, where great piles of ties, which were burning, and every minute those in the calouses expected to be roasted alive. They laid down on the floor to keep from smothering, occasionally some of the men would crawl out on their stomachs and scrape sand on the burning ties to keep the flames from the calouses.

Practically all the livestock in the country is burned.

The bodies of horses, dogs, cats and other domestic animals are about the streets of the stricken towns.

Railway officials are holding all available cars to enable the people to escape should the fire get into Rainey River. Over fifty freight cars were burned on the tracks at Baudette.

WILL BE DIRECTORS
IN NEW TRUST
COMPANYBoard of Eighteen Men is Chosen by German American.

The board of directors of the new German-American Trust company, which will soon open its doors for business in Fort Wayne, has been chosen, and it is composed of the following gentlemen:

Samuel M. Foster, Theodore Wentz, Henry C. Berghoff, W. H. Shambaugh, C. F. Pfeiffer, Robert W. T. DeWald, Theodore F. Thelms, Henry Beadell, Arthur H. Perfect, Maurice Nizer, Sylvester McMahon, Robert Millard, Ernest Stephan, Henry O. Dermody, K. J. Baur, George Herrmann, Frank K. Safford and Frederick C. W. Kladu. The date for the annual meeting of the company has been made identical with that of the German-American National bank, and it is said that at this meeting early in January a number of names will be added to the board.

There has been as yet no election of officers held, but in all probability they will be largely the same as those in official place at the bank, save that Henry W. Lepper will be secretary and managing officer of the trust company. The capital stock is $100,000.

DATES CHOSEN FOR BIG TURNFEST
IN JUNEGerman Athletes in Wide Territory Coming to Fort Wayne.

June 16, 17, 18 and 19 have been selected as the dates for the big turnfest in Fort Wayne next summer, when German athletes from over a wide scope of territory will come for four days of competitive matches in an extensive program of athletics.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the Turnverein Germania. It is to be a kreis-turnfest of district competition of the turner societies of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Kentucky, and it is expected that nine hundred active turners will participate in the contests.

Victor Kulteier, of this city, is chairman of the executive committee which is arranging for the event, and a press and invitation committee has been named consisting of Prof. Benno Van-Kahliden and William Barth.

the paper train. The brakes were applied and the train stopped as quickly as possible and backed up to Columbia City, where the trainmen gave what assistance they could.

Ed Nulf, conductor of the train, and S. P. Craig, the engineer, were held for an hour while an investigation was being made and then allowed to proceed to Fort Wayne with their crew.

The crossing is located east of the Pennsylvania depot and is not the same one at which the king horror occurred a few years ago. The coroner took up an investigation of the matter with a view of fixing the blame.

to find a path to which they are believed to be huddled together, in death, or perhaps, if still living, encased in a small space selected by themselves from black damp.

The latter hypothesis based, of course, upon the probability that the men were not instantly killed by the explosion or suffocated afterward by deadly gases. Every plan that the ingenuity of experts can summon is being put into effect to penetrate the black depths of the mine and reach the imprisoned men.

Goes Joliffing; Escapes.
Mourned as dead for more than twenty-four hours, Dave Obesh, one of the oldest Starkville miners in point of service, astonished his friends by appearing in camp last night unharmed. According to his story it was by the merest chance that he escaped the calamity that overwhelmed the mine late Saturday night. For fourteen years Obesh has been employed at Starkville and for the last six months he was known not to have missed a shift. Saturday night he went to Trinidad for a joliffing with a party of friends.

ARRIVES AT LITTLE ROCK.
Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 10.—Then-Admiral Roosevelt passed through Little Rock early today on his way to Hot Springs, where he is to spend the day.

The train stopped here only a few minutes, while it was being switched to the tracks of the Iron Mountain railroad. Colonel Roosevelt was still in his state room when the train left.

On his return trip late tonight he is to stop for half an hour in Little Rock. On leaving Hot Springs Colonel Roosevelt will begin his homeward trip, after spending some time in St. Louis he will cross into Illinois, going from there to Indiana.

DEITZ FACES TRIAL FOR FIRST DEGREE
MURDERCoroner's Jury Finds in Death of Deputy at Cameron Dam.

Winter, Wis., Oct. 10.—The jury assembled by Coroner W. H. Noyes to view the body of Oscar Harp, one of the sheriff's deputies, who was shot and killed Saturday during the attack on John Deitz's cabin, today brought in a verdict that Harp "came to his death by a bullet shot from the roof of the Deitz barn, the shot having been fired by one of the Deitz family."

According to the testimony offered by the other deputies at the inquest the shot which killed Harp could not have been fired from any other point.

A charge of murder in the first degree will now be made by District Attorney J. C. Davis against John F. Deitz, Leslie Deitz and Mrs. John F. Deitz.

SURRENDER OF DEITZ.
Winter, Wis., Oct. 10.—"If papa comes out will you promise not to shoot him? He is shot through the hand and wants to surrender."

These words spoken to Sheriff Mike Madden at the edge of the clearing surrounding the besieged home, by little Helen, youngest daughter of John F. Deitz, brought to an end late Saturday afternoon the stubborn resistance of the man whose stand for the last six years against what he considered injustice has attracted widespread interest.

The surrender did not come, however, without death and bloodshed. One man is dead, three men and a woman are wounded and much property has been destroyed.

THE DEAD.
OSCAR HARP, 35 years old, deputy sheriff.

INJURED.
John Deitz, 49 years old, defender of Cameron dam shot through the hand. Chief Colepich, 35, deputy, right ear shot off.

Clarence Deitz, shot through arm. Myra Deitz, shot through body, will recover.

The last two named, children of John Deitz, were shot by deputies in the preliminary skirmish a few days ago.

One Deputy is Victim.
Harp was found on a hill behind the Deitz cabin with a bullet hole in his head. He, with Mont Wiley, Tom Pomeroy, William Rankin, all deputies, had tried to crawl to a place of vantage in the lumber pile near the Deitz barn, when a well-directed bullet caught him.

According to Wiley, three bullets whistled through the air at about the same time, and one of them struck Harp. The other deputies retreated without trying to rescue their comrade. He was found at 3:30 o'clock and had been dead about three hours.

Deitz had not been wounded during the morning fusillade, as had been supposed. His drop to the ground was merely a ruse to fool the deputies. He was injured, however, while firing from the barn during the afternoon, when a bullet went through a crack and struck his left hand.

Stark Cause of Surrender.
Deitz denies that the wound caused him to surrender. To Father Joseph Pilon, the priest who was largely instrumental in bringing the long-drawn-out contest to a close, he whispered that a baby was about to be born to his wife, and he feared that both she and the infant might die.

The surrender of Deitz was dramatic. The alert lumbermen, leaning on their rifles at the edge of the clearing and gazing intently at the windows of the log cabin, suddenly saw the flutter of a white handkerchief at the door. Then little Helen appeared, and, advancing with the cloth over her head, walked to the edge of the clearing, where she announced that her papa was willing to surrender.

Fearing for Wife and Babies.
With Father Pilon and Deputy Sheriff Thorburn, who went into the cabin to arrest Deitz, were a number of newspaper men.

Deitz submitted to arrest quietly, saying: "I could not hold out any longer with myself and Leslie crippled. The bullets came so fast it looked like the wife and babies would get it too."

Deitz's left hand was in a sling and he was smiling and spoke cheerfully to the newspaper men. He posed for several pictures with the sheriff, in one of which he was shaking hands with the official.

"Why didn't you give in yesterday when assured of a fair trial by the attorney general?" a reporter asked.

"They kept on changing their plans," he replied, "and I did not know what I could depend upon. Besides, we thought we could have lasted it out, and we could have but for the little baby we expect. You might go into the house and see what we have had to stand."

In the trim little cabin, where Mrs. Deitz was still at work putting things in order, broken jars and dishes lay scattered on the floor, they having been struck by bullets, of which more than 2,000 had been fired during the day. Bullets lay on the bed, having bounced back after striking against the wall. It was a miracle that the entire family was not wiped out.

Mrs. Deitz Breaks Down.
Mrs. Deitz broke down and weepingly asked the reporters to say that she and the children did not fire a shot.

"I had not argued and argued with John we would all have been dead before morning," she said.

Mrs. Deitz is under arrest with Leslie on warrants of four years' standing charging assault with intent to commit murder.

While the arrest was being made the little girl and boy clinging to their weeping mother and Leslie, who was wounded in the hip, sat sullenly in a chair.

Deitz was brought to Winter with his entire family. He was rushed to the jail at Hayward in an automobile, while Mrs. Deitz and the children will be taken care of here.

J. C. Davis, the district attorney of Sawyer county, said last evening there were enough warrants out against Deitz to send him to prison for the remainder of his life if he was convicted.

the Courts.

Mary Schmal thinks that a quarter of a century of abuse and non-support is about as much as any woman ought to stand for and she gives this as an excuse for asking a divorce from Paul Schmal, to whom she was married in March, 1885.

She charges in her complaint that he abused her, failed to provide for his family, although he is capable of earning enough money to support her and their nine children. She lived with him until last month. W. C. Ryan filed the action.

All Property to Wife.
Under the will of Owen Owens, filed in the circuit court for probate, all of the property is left to Mary C. Owens, the widow, and she is named as executrix.

Damage Suit On Trial.
The damage suit of Louise Worck against Henry Meyer and the city of Fort Wayne was put on trial before a jury in the circuit court today.

ACQUIT WOMAN OF MURDER.
Lexington, Ky., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Sarah J. Eblin was today acquitted of the charge of murdering her husband, Blain Eblin, whom she shot after she found him, according to her testimony, in the embrace of a negro cook. Eblin, his wife testified, attempted to assault her when she fired.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

HAS LOST HIS WIFE AND HIS BANK ROLL

She Skipped Out Taking the Two Children and Over $900 in Cash.

Montpelier, Ind., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Joe Pyles has disappeared taking with her between $600 and $700 in cash, her two children and the proceeds from the sale of the family household goods. Pyles and Marshall Sauer, of Hartford City, went to Bluffton to look for the woman, but could not locate her.

The Pyles have been living south of town and the act of his wife has left him almost penniless. Mrs. Pyles was a Miss Shatto previous to her marriage.

The husband appealed to Marshal Sauer and told his tale of woe. The two children and the $700 mean a good deal to him, he declares, and he is anxious to recover the money as well as the children. The woman left Thursday afternoon, the husband claims, and Friday morning she is alleged to have gone to Bluffton, where she has relatives living. She purchased a round trip ticket and it is possible that she intended to return. The husband is taking no chances, however.

SETTLED FOR $4,000.

Death Claim Growing Out of the Kingsland Wreck.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 10.—Settlements of more of the claims for damages against the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company because of the Kingsland wreck have been practically agreed upon and are ready for final confirmation.

One of these is the claim of Mrs. Rachel Bowman, because of the death of her husband, William E. Bowman, who was a prominent farmer west of Bluffton and a director in the Liberty Senter bank. The first offer of the company was to settle for $3,500, but finally a compromise figure was reached for a settlement for $4,000. With this agreement between the company and Mrs. Bowman instructions were given Frank W. Gordon, attorney for Mrs. Bowman, to file the suit in circuit court on behalf of Mrs. Bowman as administrator against the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley, for damages and judgment, as per agreement between the parties, was entered for $4,000.

THE FALL WAS FATAL.

Working Forty Feet Above Ground When Pole Broke.

Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 10.—John Tefelle, city electrician of Nappanee, met instant death there Saturday when the pole upon which he was working broke and permitted him to fall forty feet to the ground.

The accident was witnessed by several persons who rushed immediately to where the form lay huddled at the foot of the broken pole. Tefelle was dead, however, when the nearest witness reached the spot, the presumption being that his neck was broken. The chest was badly crushed and both arms broken, later examination being expected to disclose further results.

The fact of the death is rendered more deserving of pity in that Tefelle, who was about forty-five years of age, is survived by the widow and nine children, most of the family being of ages too young to permit them to aid in their support.

THE WOMEN OF TODAY.

Are They an Improvement on Their Fore-Mothers?

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 10.—The October meeting of the Noble County Horticultural society will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin Strater, third and one-fourth miles west of Kendallville, Thursday, October 20.

There are two subjects to be presented at this meeting—"Are the Women of Today an Improvement on Their Fore-Mothers?" by Mrs. W. W. Riddle, and "The Unappreciated Advantages of Farm Life," by Mrs. Julia Foote.

CATARRH
A SYSTEMIC BLOOD DISEASE

Catarrh is not merely an affection of the mucous membranes; it is a deep-seated blood disease in which the entire circulation and greater part of the system are involved. It is more commonly manifested in the head, nose and throat, because of the sensitive nature of these membranes, and also because they are more easily reached by irritating influences from the outside. The symptoms of Catarrh, such as a tight feeling in the head, nose stopped up, throat clogged and dry, hacking cough, etc., show that the tiny blood vessels of the mucous membranes are badly congested and inflamed from the impurities in the circulation. To cure Catarrh permanently the blood must be purified and the system cleansed of all unhealthy matter. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head, goes down to the bottom of the trouble and makes a complete and lasting cure by PURIFYING the blood. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, the head is cleared, breathing becomes natural and easy, the throat is no longer clogged, and every unpleasant symptom of the disease disappears. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and for this reason is the most certain cure for Catarrh. Book on Catarrh and medical advice free to all who write.

WHEN BRYAN COMES

The Nebraskan Will Speak in Court House Yard on Friday Afternoon.

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 10.—The DeKalb county democratic organization is making great plans for the big Bryan meeting to be held in this city on Friday afternoon of this week. Mr. Bryan comes from Iowa to Auburn and will be met in Chicago by a committee from this county. Among the members of the committee who will meet him are County Chairman Kitcher, E. O. Little and R. Earl Peters.

At Auburn Junction Mr. Bryan and party will be met by an automobile and brought to Auburn, and by the arrangements the speech will be delivered on the court house square. Mr. Bryan will speak at Columbia City in the evening.

COLLAR BONE BROKEN.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 10.—Guy, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson, residing at Mt. Zion, had a collar bone broken in a runaway accident Saturday evening. He, in company with two older boys, Raymond Bird, son of Stephen Bird, and Charles West, who resides with his grandfather, George Hart, were riding in a spring wagon. The horse took fright at some object along the road and ran away. The two older boys jumped and the little fellow stayed in the wagon until he was thrown out.

BURGLARS GOT NOTHING.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 10.—Yeggen attempted to blow open the safe of the postoffice at Kimmell early Saturday morning, but were not successful in their attempt. The postoffice is located in Smith & Growcock's grocery store and late in the night an explosion was heard. An investigation followed, and the safe was found in a battered condition, but still locked and as safe as ever.

OSSIAN PIONEER DEAD.

Ossian, Ind., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Susan Houk, aged 86, one of the oldest residents of Jefferson township, died Saturday at the home of her son, Martin Wagner, northeast of Ossian, from the general infirmities of age. She was a native of Ohio and came to this county with her first husband, J. P. Wagner, fifty-one years ago. She was married a second time to George Houk, who died thirty years ago.

LOOKING FOR GIRLS.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 10.—James Ryan, an old employee of the Barker-Brown shoe factory, was in the city Saturday looking for ten or a dozen girls who would be induced to go to Rochester to work in a shoe factory which is being started there. Although several other factories have started in that city they have made up their minds this time that a success will be made in the venture.

DRUG CLERK SUICIDES.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 10.—D. McCance, 22, a clerk in the W. P. Bender store at Markle, committed suicide Saturday evening by shooting himself through the head with a target rifle. His friends at Markle are unable to assign any cause for his act. He had no troubles, known of now, that would lead to such a deed and his health had been apparently good.

DEATH AT DECATUR.

Decatur, Ind., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Catherine Niblick, widow of the late Jesse Niblick, one of the pioneer ladies of the city, died Saturday after a several weeks' illness from weakness attending old age, she being in her 82nd year. She was a native of Germany, being a daughter of John and Catherine Cloos, coming to this country in her childhood.

FINED FOR ASSAULT.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 10.—Through a reconciliation between John Myers and his stepson, Aaron Myers, the charge of drawing a deadly weapon, which the latter filed against his father a few days ago, was Saturday dismissed, and the charge made assault. Myers pleaded guilty to this and was fined $1 and costs.

WELLMAN READY FOR FLIGHT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

of lack of knowledge of his achievements. It is not generally known that, in 1909, Wellman's airship "America," sailing from Spitzbergen, made a most wonderful start toward the north pole. The ship was in the air seven hours, going north at the rate of twenty miles an hour. Wellman for that trip devised the "equilibrator," the members of the crew giving it a shorter and easier name, "snake." When about seventy-nine miles away from Spitzbergen this "snake," thought to be the safest part of the whole craft, tore loose and the journey to the pole had to be abandoned.

Pearry's discovery of the north pole caused Wellman to abandon the quest. Also his experience with the snake had convinced him on two big points: First, that his equilibrator theory had proven good in practice; second, that it would work better on water than on land. He determined to cross the Atlantic ocean.

The "America," as prepared for this Atlantic ocean voyage, is an enlarged edition of the dirigible in which Mr. Wellman twice attempted to reach the pole. It is built on exactly the same principle, but has almost twice the lifting power. It can carry a load of twelve tons, and as equipped for the voyage will bear the burden of the 4,500 pound steel car, 5,000 pounds of engines, life boat, supplies and crew, 10,000 pounds of gasoline and lubricator.

The car, built of light steel, is wonderfully strong. Its backbone is a large steel tank and carries the main supply of gasoline in 16 compartments, each of which may be tapped separately. Besides the engines, the car carries the supplies, instruments, a life boat and quarters for the crew. It is attached to the balloon in a way that leaves the gas bag perfectly smooth and non-resistant. The bag itself is made of several layers of silk and cotton, thoroughly impregnated with rubber and varnished outside. It is 52 feet in diameter, with a capacity of 345,000 cubic feet of gas. An air pump keeps the gas bag in shape by pumping air into balloons or separate compartments within the bag to replace the leakage of hydrogen. This leakage, less than one per cent. per day, of course, affects the lifting power, but the consumption of gasoline and supplies will lighten the airship faster than the lifting power diminishes.

The wireless apparatus has been so planned as to obviate all danger of sparks igniting either the gasoline supply or the balloon. For its size it is a marvelously powerful plant and it is believed by Mr. Wellman that with it he can keep in constant touch with ships and thus with land. Bulletins are to be sent as often as possible.

Hampton's Magazine has paid Mr. Wellman a substantial retainer and will pay him a much larger sum in the event of a successful trip across the ocean. Anyhow, that magazine will publish his complete account of his aeronautic experiences up to date.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of J. C. Watson

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 10.—There will be no eight hour day for the six men who are about to start on a trans-Atlantic trip to London in Walter Wellman's airship, "America." Eight-hour shifts will be the rule, and with the multiplicity of engines, ropes, instruments and apparatus to watch they will be busy shifts. Yet the crew, the captain and the engineer are impatient to begin these labors.

The big dirigible with its 228-foot gas bag and its 154-foot car, has been tested in every detail, and now swings uneasily in its shed here, ready for the journey with its wireless equipment installed and its supplies all stored.

"Our estimate of the time for the flight," said Mr. Wellman today, "is somewhere from six to eight days, or conditions are so favorable, but we will have provisions for a thirty day flight and emergency rations for thirty days more. That is a safeguard against the thousand chances that beset an enterprise like this."

The aviator, who is to write the story of this trip exclusively for Hampton's Magazine, bases his belief that the trip will take about a week on two factors, the engines and the winds.

Our gasoline motor of 80 horse power will turn two propellers 150 times a minute, giving a speed of 20 miles an hour. There is also another motor of 30 horse power, an explorer on land and sea, because can go to make the airship fit for the journey and though failure is not unlikely, we believe we're going to demonstrate that a dirigible can cross the Atlantic in the same time or even less than the liners."

Mr. Melvin Vaniman, the mechanical genius of the expedition, has done everything that skill and foresight

30-100 horse power driving two other propellers. The larger motor is to be used alternately with the other, one running while the other cools.

A careful study of air currents has shown the prevailing winds at this season of the year to be in the direction of the airship's projected course. In still air the aviators can make a speed of 20 miles an hour with one engine and any favorable wind will increase the speed by the velocity of the breeze. To keep the dirigible at the desired distance above the water, Mr. Vaniman, the engineer, has designed what he calls the "equilibrator," which is a series of cylindrical gasoline tanks strung like beads on a long steel cable. This is controlled by means of a winch on the car.

A balloon full of hydrogen constantly expands and contracts under the influence of temperature changes. When the hydrogen contracts, the dirigible sinks, when it expands it rises. The equilibrator is heavy, but it will float. Therefore when the dirigible sinks toward the water successive links of the equilibrator rest on the surface and with the weight thus relieved the balloon rises. When the gas again expands the equilibrator is raised and its weight overcomes the increased buoyancy, thus maintaining the desired level, which is to be between 150 and 250 feet above the sea. The equilibrator is regarded as one of the most useful and important parts of the airship.

Few Americans appreciate the accomplishments of Walter Wellman as much as we do. There is also another motor of 30 horse power, an explorer on land and sea, because

DELAYING PUBLIC WORK.

Fort Wayne has always suffered more or less from lack of diligence by contractors for public work. This has been specially true of street paving. Now and then there has been an exception, but the rule has been tardiness and embarrassment. This has been the city's experience during the present summer. With weather of unexampled propitiousness for outdoor work from May to October, there has been no excuse for the delays that have marked the prosecution of public work. These conditions are not more peculiar to the present than to any former administration. It seems to be the accepted view at the city hall that if a contractor doesn't he can't go any faster than he's going. Perhaps under consideration that he might go a lot slower it is thought the better part of wisdom to "let well enough alone," which would all be very well, if it were well. But it is not well.

The board of works can impose upon contractors conditions that shall guarantee to the city at least a reasonable diligence in the prosecution of public work. Except a contractor is prepared to show he has arranged for prompt and regular delivery of materials, is reasonably sure of his labor supply and is equipped to go ahead with his work he should not be permitted to put the stroke of a pick upon a street. If some measures by which the impositions and outrages of contractors could be penalized were made a part of the contract the delays in public work would cease.

It is nonsense to say that it is necessary to devote six months to the improvement of a half mile of street.

JOHN DEITZ GIVES IN.

Not a little sympathy will be expended on Deitz, the Wisconsin outlaw who has been finally lodged in jail along with his family. There was a time when Deitz merited sympathy, doubtless, but he had gone beyond what might by any stretch of imagination or spirit of charity be considered a righteous defense of his interests.

For some six years the Wisconsin outlaw had "held the fort" against the corporations and the "minions of the law." Lately too much shooting brought the authorities about his place. After a son and a daughter had become involved in a brush with the officers and the girl badly wounded, Deitz retired to his homestead, warning all to keep away on pain of death.

There followed peace parleys in which truce was declared and commissioners from the local and state authorities sought to impress on Deitz the futility of resistance. He was promised impartial treatment and a fair trial, but in the end rejected all overtures and retired to his cabin to await the storm of the place. Himself and his son wounded, his wife in a precarious state from a delicate condition and the beleaguering force numerous and determined, Deitz finally did what discretion long ago must have urged. He came out and gave himself into custody. Meanwhile, he had slain a deputy sheriff, for whose death he must answer. Inquiry may develop that Deitz has become a monomaniac on the subject of his wrongs to an irresponsible degree. Otherwise, he has no claim to leniency or mercy. He has set a bad example of defiance of the law and has raised up a brood that has not been vouchsafed much training of value to good citizenship.

Portugal is now facing the most serious of immediate problems arising from the revolution. The mob, with its appetite whetted for pillage, arson, rapine and murder, does not want to surrender the license to excess conferred by the inauguration of the outbreak and the fighting that followed. Outrages are numerous, according to the dispatches, and the religious orders which have been put under degree of banishment by the new government, seem to be the special object of attack. Portugal cannot make the turbulent feel the iron hand of the law too soon.

The hot-footing colonel has been tearing at a tremendous speed through the south and will come up out of Arkansas to St. Louis and then across country into Indiana and then only his route agent knows where. This must be to certain newspapers published on Manhattan Island confirmation strong as proofs of holy writ that he is going to try it again in 1912.

It depends a lot on whose doing the flying and what he is flying in whether these spectacular flights over long distances fill the bill. This much you may have noticed—that when a Wright pupil in a Wright machine starts on an undertaking he usually goes through with it.

IN THE THEATERS

BARGAIN MATINEE THURSDAY.

"The Lion and the Mouse" Coming for Three Days at Popular Prices.

The triumphantly successful career of Charles Klein's great play, "The Lion and the Mouse," is evidence of the growing popularity of the clean, wholesome drama.

This play has literally swept the continent, and has been the source of large fortunes to both Henry B. Harris, its producer, and Charles Klein, its author. It is absolutely clean; so clean, indeed, as to be truly refreshing.

There is not a single line in it that will ruffle the most sensitive nature. Its success reflects credit on the taste of American play-goers and has been so marked and so well preserved that it seems likely (like "The Brook") to flow on forever. The world needs more playwrights like Charles Klein and more plays like "The Lion and the Mouse." Its engagement here next Thursday (Friday and Saturday at the Majestic theater) is an event that should stir up renewed and widespread interest, inasmuch as it is to be presented at the low scale of prices at that theater, and it therefore will be seen by an entirely new following, who must realize the great treat in store for them. "The Lion and the Mouse" will have special matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

"THROUGH DEATH VALLEY." Makes a Hit at the Majestic Theater This Afternoon—Plays Tonight and Tuesday and Wednesday, With Daily Matinees.

An altogether remarkable play is that entitled "Through Death Valley," which opened a three days' engagement at the Majestic this afternoon. The piece is given an elaborate production, and it deals so frankly with vital questions of American life that it must be placed in the same category with "The Girl of the Golden West," "The Great Divide" and "The Squaw Man."

The scenes of the play are laid in Utah where a villainous Latter Day Saint, named Noah Claypole, attempts to coerce a young girl, who has not adopted the Mormon faith, to marry his rascally son, Ike. The girl's father has struck a vein of purest gold after years of privation and hardship, and to complete his villainy Claypole orders this miner killed by his destroying angels.

From that point begins a long drawn out duel between Claypole and his followers and Jim Barton, an honest young miner, and friends who have scant respect for the teachings of the elders.

There sure is some class to the bill which opened at the Temple this afternoon, headed by Coin's dogs producing the pantomime drama and scenic production "It Happened in Dogville." A great many animal acts have appeared in the city, but this is the greatest animal act in the business and will undoubtedly prove the biggest feature attraction ever brought to Fort Wayne. As an extra added attraction the management secured the five Brown Brothers, the world's greatest saxophonists. Their act is said to be the highest novelty of the season. Another excellent feature will be the appearance of Queen Mab and Casper Weiss, European Lilliputian entertainers. Queen Mab is 26 years old, height 40 inches, weights 46 pounds. She is the smallest lady actress in the world. Her partner, Casper Weiss, is 20 years old, height 46 inches, weight 60 pounds. He is the funniest miniature German comedian on the American stage. Ye Olde Home Choir, one of the best singing fours in vaudeville, in a musical playlet entitled, "Congenial Neighbors." Grace Orma is a most charming character comedienne. The Algonquin comedy acrobats Dan Maloy, Italian character change artist, and the motion pictures complete the bill.

Will discuss the battleship fleet.

Secretary of Navy to See San Francisco About Permanent Fleet.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 10.—Secretary of the Navy George von Meyer, who is swinging around the lost line of the United States inspecting naval stations, arrived in Seattle late last night. The secretary said he had read newspaper reports of the memorial which the mayors of coast cities are rolling to present to him asking that a permanent battleship fleet be stationed on the coast and he remarked that while in California he intended to see Governor Gillett and go over the plan with him. He declined to commit himself as to what would be recommended. Secretary Meyer put himself on record as favoring the purchase of Pacific coast coal stations for coaling, provided a coal can be found that will stand the naval test. Such a test will be made soon.

Asked concerning Representative W. E. Humphreys' claim that the navy test was unfair, Secretary Meyer replied: "If it is, then it must be remedied. It would save the department half the cost of coal if it could be bought on the Pacific coast instead of being brought around from the Atlantic."

He will spend today inspecting the Puget Sound navy yard. This morning he was entertained at dinner by the chamber of commerce.

WILL TEST WASHINGTON COAL.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 10.—The naval collier Saturn sailed for San Francisco yesterday with a cargo of Pacific coast coal mined in the mountains near Seattle to be used on one of the cruisers of the Pacific fleet in a test for comparison with the steaming qualities of the eastern coal which is now used exclusively by the navy.

If the coal carried by the Saturn comes up to the naval requirements the government will use it on all vessels on the Pacific coast, thus saving the great expense incurred at present by sending every year several ship loads of fuel around the Horn from Newport News, Va.

Alfred Earl, of Detroit, was found lying along the Nickel Plate tracks near Mortimer Friday afternoon with his right leg and left hand cut off. He will die. How he met injury is not known, but it is supposed that he fell from a train while stealing a ride.

IN THE CHURCHES

RICH IN ITS RESOURCES IS DARK CONTINENT OF AFRICA

Splendid Address Given by Dr. Richards, a Returned Missionary.

Dr. E. H. Richardson, a missionary of East Africa, who is spending several months on a visit in this country, having been engaged for thirty years in the mission fields in Africa as a missionary, delivered addresses in this city Sunday at three of the churches, speaking in the evening at the First M. E. church to a great audience.

His address was intensely interesting and held his audience attentive for over an hour as he told of the wonderfully rich resources of Africa, the customs and habits of the people, and the progress of mission work in that country of millions of heathens. It was replete with humor and frequently kept his hearers in laughter, weaving his humor into his remarks on almost every phase of his subject touched upon.

Africa, he said, is boundless in its resources. It has gold and silver and copper and coal in its almost exhaustless mines. It is waiting only for the hands of Christian men to dig them out and the heat of that country are being converted to Christianity for that purpose. They are a splendid build of physical manhood, but they need civilization and Christianity to make them workers. It will pay to Christianize them.

His description of the country was interesting. Its lakes are six times the size of our great lakes. Its Congo river is fifteen miles wide and has falls grander and larger than Niagara. Rich in the motive power and transportation facilities that her rivers and lakes afford, its mines can only be properly developed by the civilizing influence of the Christian religion on its 150,000,000 natives. It will pay, from a financial point of view, the Christian world, the speaker said, to save the souls of these benighted people.

Other interesting addresses were delivered in the Methodist churches Sunday by F. B. Caldwell, of China; Dr. Price, of India, and K. E. Pease, of Malaysia, each of them returned missionaries.

SPEAKS AT HUNTINGTON.

Father Quinlan is Orator at Columbus Day Celebration.

The Knights of Columbus at Huntington on Wednesday evening of this week will have exercises in observance of the anniversary of the landing in America of Christopher Columbus, the discovery of America, which was the 12th of October, 1492, and the principal speaker on the program arranged for the occasion will be Rev. John E. Quinlan, the pastor of the Catholic church at Huntington, who is also one of the speakers at the Huntington church for several years previous to being transferred to his charge here. Father John E. Quinlan, the pastor of the Catholic church at Huntington, is also one of the speakers.

The Knights of Columbus of Fort Wayne, while observing the event with exercises at their hall with brief talks from members, will not have this year the elaborate celebration usual to the anniversary. The local organization had discussed having such an observation, but in view of the many other public events this month and the fact that it was the closing days of the political campaign, concluded to content itself with a minor observance.

In many cities, however, the Knights of Columbus have great celebrations and splendid programs. In fifteen states the day is a legal holiday. It is not in Indiana. Columbus day marks the anniversary of the most important event in American history, the opening of a new world to civilization and Christianity, one in which religious freedom and Christianity won a great victory and gave to this part of the world a higher type of civilization than the old world ever knew.

Deservedly, then, has the name of Columbus become famous in history. Deservedly is honor paid to his memory with each recurring anniversary by the Knights of Columbus, an organization that in this country alone numbers over 250,000 members. He performed a service, that was momentous in the results it has brought. No wonder that his name is honored; no wonder that the Knights of Columbus are agreed in the proposition to make the 12th of October a legal holiday in Indiana.

PATTERSON-FLETCHER COMPANY

THE STORE FOR YOU

Attention! Clothing Buyers

We want every man who expects to buy a neat, conservative suit, and every young man who expects to buy an up-to-the-minute suit in an extreme cut or plain model, to read this advertisement. In the first place this store is the home of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothing; the finest ready to wear clothing in the world. This store is the home of "Kuppenheimer" and "L System" clothes. These are the three leaders in fine garments. Every suit made by these three manufacturers is made by hand and is made of pure wool materials.

NOW TO THE POINT

We are positive that every man and young man in Fort Wayne would want to wear this clothing if it was not for price; some do not care for the price; others realize that a pure wool hand tailored suit gives satisfaction and is economical in the long run; but many on account of price feel that they must get along with cheaper made garments.

NOW READ THIS AND REMEMBER IT

We have placed this fine hand-made clothing within the reach of all. The man that has been paying $15.00 for a poorly tailored suit, made from cotton adulterated material, can come to our store and buy one of these fine suits for the same money and we will give you five times as many patterns to select from as you will find in any other store. At $20 we will give you the same suits that are being sold in other places in the state at $25.00 to $28.00.

DON'T THINK WE ARE CUTTING PRICES

For no other merchant in Fort Wayne has a single suit made by any of these manufacturers, but we want to say right here that the other merchants will have a hard time to sell the man who looks at our place before he buys.

We have placed in stock for your inspection more hand tailored suits than you can find in any other three stores in Fort Wayne. We have marked them $5.00 to $8.00 less than you can buy the same suit in other cities or similar values in this city, because down in our heart we want to give you the greatest values we possibly can, and back of it all we are determined to give Fort Wayne the largest clothing store in the state.

Now this has been a long talk, but we didn't know how to say it in less words, and in closing want this much at least to stay with you. "It is far better to buy a Patterson-Fletcher Co. suit, than to wish you had bought one."

HER TOUR AROUND THE WORLD.

Bishop's Wife Told an Interesting Story.

Mrs. Rebecca Sellow, the wife of Bishop Sellow, of Jamestown, N. Y., who has been here during the past week with the bishop in attendance on the North Indiana Free Methodist conference, was the speaker at the woman's meeting Sunday afternoon at the Bowser Free Methodist church, delivering an address in which she told an interesting story of her trip around the world, made recently, accompanying her husband in his visits to the foreign countries.

Her address while dealing with missionary conditions in China, Japan, the Indies and other countries, was devoted principally to South Africa, where the two spent most of their time. She told of the wonderful work being done there by the church among the millions of heathens and the wonderful work that is yet to be done before the dark continent can be Christianized and gave in connection with the story many incidents that held her audience interested throughout.

At the morning service at the church and also in the evening Bishop Sellow preached. He is one of the ablest divines of his denomination, a great pulpit and platform speaker, and his sermons during the progress of the conference, at which he presided, were eloquent in words and delivery and spiritually uplifting.

THE SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Fort Wayne Delegates Attend State Meeting at Indianapolis.

The Presbyterian synod of Indiana is held at Indianapolis this week, beginning this evening in the Tabernacle Presbyterian church, and continuing until Wednesday evening. Attending as delegates from this city will be James E. McKay, Shirley N. Longworth, C. N. Shirey and Rev. Dr. F. M. Fox. Dr. Fox is the chairman of the synodical committee on missions, a place that he has continuously held for the last ten years. Mr. McKay is a member of the synodical finance committee.

The meeting is an annual event and an important one, themes of interest being discussed and business of great concern to the church being transacted. Prominent speakers from over the state are on the program, among them Rev. Dr. Moffat, of this city, who is scheduled for an address Tuesday forenoon. The moderator presiding is Rev. Harry Nyce, D. D.

Spoke at Columbia City.

Rev. C. N. Shirey, the district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was at Columbia City Sunday, where he spoke at rally day meetings held in the churches there in the interest of temperance. E. S. Shumaker, the state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was also one of the speakers. From Columbia City Supt. Shirey went to Indianapolis to attend the sessions of the Presbyterian synod.

Presbyterian Men's Club.

On Tuesday evening of next week the Men's club of the First Presbyterian church expect to have with them as a speaker Mr. McVicker, of Des Moines, Iowa, who will deliver an address setting forth the benefits of a commission form of government for cities. It was expected he would be here tomorrow evening, but word has been received from him that he can not be.

Knights of Columbus.
The Knights of Columbus of this city are arranging for a series of meetings to be held during the winter months at which addresses will be delivered by prominent speakers from other cities. The society has a large membership, Ed J. Ehrman being the grand knight. The meetings are held in the Lau block.

Rescue Mission.

An interesting meeting was held Sunday forenoon at the county jail by workers from the Rescue Home and Mission. Services were held in the afternoon at the mission for the Sunday school. It was under the charge of James M. Stewart. In the evening W. P. Kellogg and J. N. Unhardt, both of Detroit, spoke.

Missionary Meetings.

The monthly missionary meeting of the Church of God will be held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Stella Bolta, 3209 South Harrison street.

The Home Missionary society of the St. John's Lutheran church will be held Wednesday afternoon at the school hall, Mrs. Fred Kierspe entertaining.

SERVICE IS CRIPPLED.

Street Railway System Suffers from Shortage of Carmen.

Superintendent E. M. Raver, of the city street railway system, said today that one of the most pressing difficulties which confronts his company is the shortage of men to operate the cars. It was impossible to supply special Knitting Mills cars this morning from the fact that there were no men available to operate them, and a number of the city lines were late in starting for the day for the same reason.

Superintendent Raver says that it seems impossible to secure a sufficient number of men who will stay "on the job," and that even the "extra" men are now earning from $12 to $16 per week.

GOES TO BROADWAY STORE.

August A. Harber a Branch Manager for Meyer Brothers Company.

August A. Harber, who has been a prescriptionist at the Columbia street store of the Meyer Brothers company, in Denver, Mrs. Zimmer's husband has been named as manager of the company's Broadway store and took charge of his new position today. He succeeds Curtis Brown, who has resigned to go to Montana. Mr. Harber is a popular young man and has been in the employ of the Meyer company for about four years.

Read the Patterson-Fletcher Co "ad" on page 5.

Mrs. James Louis Dixon, of Denver, and her sister, Mrs. O. P. Zimmer, of Bluffton, are at the Anthony, and will leave tomorrow for Mrs. Dixon's home in Denver. Mrs. Zimmer's husband was one of the victims of the Kings-company's Broadway store and took land wreck. Mrs. Zimmer will make her future home with her sister in Denver.

Mrs. Archer will be remembered as Miss Helen Griley and is an ex-member of the club. Those present included the most intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Archer who gathered to welcome them again to their circle, including Claude Ott, who arrived last Thursday from Panama. The evening was much enjoyed and the young ladies confirmed their reputation as social entertainers. Mr. and Mrs. Archer are now visiting friends in this city and expect to soon return to the isthmus, where both Mr. Archer and Mr. Ott are employed in the construction of the great canal.

Darling Family Reunion. Members of the Darling family to the number of seventy, held their second annual reunion at the home of Mordecai Darling, a short distance south of Harlan, on the first of October. The company spent a pleasant day and enjoyed among other things an elegant dinner. Mordecai Darling was re-elected president of the family society; William S. Ringwalt, vice president; Mrs. Orvil Snyder, historian; Miss Gladys Ringwalt, secretary and treasurer. The next reunion of the family is set for August, 1911, at the home of Almon Darling.

RENTS IN WHITE GOODS. For darning a rent in fine white goods, use one strand of No. 30 spool cotton, untwisting the thread. This makes a less apparent dress than does the finest twisted thread. It is, in fact, actually invisible if properly done.

BABY'S SCREEN. To make an attractive screen for the nursery, get a light bamboo screen (an old one will do) and remove the silkline with which these are usually covered. Substitute dark red or green cambric and cover it with colored pictures, pasted on so that each panel is given over to one kind, such as flowers, animals, children, etc. The screen will prove its value in the early morning hours, when the baby will lie and look at the pictures instead of starting an untimely concert.

A splendid filling for soft cushions may be made by taking a linen worth of cotton batting, cutting it into small squares and heating in a baking pan in the oven for half an hour, care being taken not to let it scorch. Each little square will puff up to twice its size and will be as light and fluffy as a feather.

Giblet Soup.

The giblets from a chicken are to be washed and simmered in one pint of water until tender; this is best done as soon as the fowls are cleaned. Dice the giblets, and a few diced boiled vegetables and a spoonful of boiled barley, nearly a pint of stock and the water in which the giblets were cooked. Season to taste, simmer for ten minutes and serve with fried croutons.

Orange Roly Poly.
Peel, slice and seed four sweet oranges. Mix well together one pint of flour, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Rub into this two tablespoonfuls of butter and mix in sufficient sweet milk to mix to a soft dough. Turn out on a well-floured board, roll out in a long strip, spread with the sliced oranges and sprinkle thickly with sugar. Roll up, pinch the ends so that the juice will not run out, lay on a buttered plate and steam for forty minutes, then place in the oven until the top is dried off. Serve with hard or soft sauce.

FOR SCHOOL WEAR

By MRS. JANE FORD.

5 SIZES 4 TO 12 YEARS

The one-piece waist, with the body and sleeves cut in one, is no less attractive in children's garments than in those intended for their elders, and that style promises to be popular for the coming season. A neat little frock of that type is offered in the illustration in tub or light weight woolen goods. Mothers who wish the pattern can get it in five sizes that will fit any girl between the ages of four and twelve years. To copy it for a girl eight years of age requires three and one-quarter yards of goods twenty-seven inches wide, or two and five-eighths yards thirty-six inches wide. If trimmed as pictured four yards of lining will be needed.

For school wear this dress may be made from quite inexpensive material. This season shops are showing, for from fifteen to twenty-five cents a yard, any number of pretty cotton goods both in staple and novelty weaves. Among the latter are those that have the appearance of woolsens and the way they are woven. These materials look warm and comfortable, yet can be laundered frequently without injury.

For ordinary cotton goods Hamburg insertion or stripes of blind embroidery make a pretty trimming, but for the woolen finished materials wash brand is more suitable. When making the dress the waist and skirt should be completely finished, including the waist line. The belt is of the trimming material and is applied by sewing one edge in with the seam that joins the skirt and waist. The opposite edge is then turned down three-eighths of an inch on the wrong side and the belt turned upon the waist and stitched one-eighth of an inch from the edge. The opposite edge is finished to correspond.

Facial Faults May Result from Clogged Pores

External Treatment, Combined With Dieting, Likely to Improve Condition.

Facial eruptions are not always caused by poor blood, but may be a result of clogged pores. Excessive perspiration allowed to dry on, dust which is not removed, any foreign matter or particles that happen to enter the pores and are permitted to remain there may irritate or choke, causing the pore to become a pimple or blackhead. Yet because stomach or blood may have something to do with the roughness, a girl whose face is inclined to eruptions should be scrupulously careful with her diet, eating only those things which will digest easily, and will keep her blood in good condition. Only the simplest sweets, plainly cooked meats, fish and vegetables, as well as fruits, are to be on the dietary list. Fried foods, or those served with greasy sauces or gravies, and rich desserts are to be avoided.

External treatment is likely to improve the condition and I recommend that those who need it shall keep liquid creosol soap in the house. This is chemically pure soap, is exceedingly strong and must be put on with a brush whose bristles shall make a friction without irritating the skin. This soap is far more cleansing than any other, but should not be used oftener than twice a week, or it will injure.

The use of a face brush is considered imperative for those whose skin is not smooth. The point to be remembered in selecting one is that it shall not cause the skin to smart. When it does so it must be rejected. A brush which is too stiff is sometimes reduced to proper texture by soaking it over night in hot water. All such brushes should be soaked for several hours before using the first time.

When pimples are opened, as they should be, the work is to be done with an absolutely new needle, first, washing the spot that it shall be very clean. The spot must be pressed slowly and gently, and after the operation, in order that the pore may not become enlarged, it is to be touched at once with a drop of pure alcohol or spirits of camphor.

A lotion that may be put on afterward, or rubbed on nightly when the skin is very rough, is made from two grains of camphor gum, twenty grains of acacia gum and two ounces of lime water and rose water. This may be rubbed on freely, drying into the skin. A cream for the same purpose, which is more convenient to carry, if one is traveling, is made from one-half ounce of lanoline, one-quarter of an ounce of sweet almond oil, twenty drops of boracic acid and five drops of tincture of benzoin. It is mixed as any cold cream.

Callosities of The Feet Can Be Easily Cured

Relief is Obtained by Employment of One or Two Simple Remedies.

Much relief may be given from the pain of callosities of the feet by the simple use of corn or bunion plasters, which remove pressure of leather from the tender spot, giving it a chance to heal. At the same time daily treatment should be given toward removing the trouble and, that the cause shall be entirely eliminated, it is wise to put aside shoes that are being worn and have new ones with lasts of different shape. Only by doing this can one be sure that the foot is having proper space. Also it will be found the part of economy not to wear shoes that press over the joints, for though a person may never have any such trouble it will inevitably result in warm weather from the slightest constriction by leather.

An amazing amount of benefit is to be derived from the use of pumice stone, not the smooth kind prepared for the hands, but a lump in the rough. Rubbing with this reduces the callosity, after a time removing it entirely, if the surface be protected from further hurt.

The pain comes from a hard lump being pressed into the delicate flesh. Obviously, then, a plaster having in it a hole slightly larger than the tender spot will, if placed over it, aid by preventing pressure. This is to be worn every day until all trouble is removed.

At night the joint should be soaked for ten or fifteen minutes in water so soapy as to be soft. At the end of that time, when the hard portion is more tender to work upon, it is gently wiped, and then the spot is rubbed to space. Also it will be found the part live flesh is felt. This must not be irritated or the difficulty will only be worse, but as much of the callous portion is to be rubbed down as can be. Then over the spot is put a bandage to hold in place a wad of absorbent cotton, soaked either in glycerine or kerosene oil. Both are penetrating, but the odor of the latter prevents it being desirable. Nevertheless it is almost always at hand and so may be valuable.

In the morning another bit of cotton should be similarly soaked and placed over the sore in the hollow of the plaster, but one cannot be too careful, that the plaster edge or the wad does not press on the tender portion, for the condition would then only grow worse constantly. That place must be surrounded to be relieved from pressure.

A fortnight of this treatment, always using friction at night, will accomplish wonders by way of a cure. Be it understood that during the day boots which do not fit are not to be worn.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."—Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice. No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial. This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial. Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

NEGROES FLOCK TO TRAIN TO SEE COLONEL

Rather Awed and a Bit Uncertain Roosevelt is Not Counterfeit.

Corinth, Miss., Oct. 10.—The Roosevelt train traveled leisurely through parts of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee yesterday and the engineer stopped wherever there was a station. The people swarmed over the tracks and crowded around the end of the train in struggling masses about evenly divided between whites and negroes.

At some places the crowds were so dense that the colonel warned the people not to push too hard, else they would crush those who were next to the car.

"I don't want to be accused of slaying any of you," he said.

They shouted, blew whistles and rang dinner bells to welcome Colonel Roosevelt. At one small town in Mississippi the worshipers in a negro church, which stands a few rods from the station, deserted their preacher when the train pulled in and flocked out to the train.

Parson Passed the Hat.

He parson came too. He wore a frayed frock coat and had no collar on. He took advantage of the occasion by passing through the crowd, his battered hat in his hand, calling out:

"A nicker or a dime for the poor old preacher, please."

The crowd at another station was composed entirely of negroes. Colonel Roosevelt came out and smiled, but there were no welcoming shouts from the crowd for no one knew who he was. It was a new experience for the colonel and he stood silently on the platform until one aged negro, with a long beard and a straw hat without a rim, called out:

"Is you President Roosevelt?"

"I am Mr. Roosevelt," the colonel replied.

Was a Bit in Doubt.

Still the negroes were silent, not knowing whether to believe it or not. Another one asked the same question and got the same reply. Then the train pulled out, leaving them standing there, gazing in silent wonderment at the ex-president.

The largest crowds were out at Chattanooga, Tenn., and at Huntsville, Decatur and Tusculuma, Ala. At all of these places so many people came out that Colonel Roosevelt could not make them all hear him. In all of his speeches he talked good citizenship.

When he had finished speaking at Tusculuma a negro woman, wearing a man's straw hat, pushed her way up to the colonel. She said she was 55 years old and wanted to bring the colonel good luck. For that purpose she thrust into his hand an acorn. "Keep that by you and it'll fetch you good luck," she said. The colonel thanked her and took the acorn.

Representative E. S. Candler, of Corinth, Miss., a democrat, got on the train at Tusculuma to act as an escort to Colonel Roosevelt on the way to Corinth. A big crowd welcomed the colonel at Corinth and he made one of his good citizenship speeches.

FORESTER QUOTES FIRE LAW.

Sees Great Loss to State Annually By Small Fires.

Indianapolis, Oct. 10.—Charles C. Deam, secretary of the state board of forestry, in a pamphlet just issued, calls attention to the wanton destruction of property in Indiana by small fires. The annual loss to the state, Mr. Deam says, amounts to thousands of dollars. He believes that the greater part of this loss could be avoided by enforcing the fire law.

The statute provides: "Any one who maliciously or wantonly sets fire to any woods or property not his own, or maliciously or wantonly permits fire to pass from his property to the injury or destruction of the property of any other person, shall, on conviction, be liable for all damages sustained and not fined less than $5 nor more than $100, to which may be added imprisonment not exceeding thirty days."

The law further provides that the prosecuting attorneys shall investigate questionable fires and prosecute law violators and that individual liability for damages suffered will follow their failure to act. The law has been printed on muslin signs for distribution throughout the state.

Hoardiness, in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. Sold by all dealers.

REXALL MEN IN CONVENTION

More Than 1,800 Stockholders of the United Drug Co. Attend Eighth Annual Convention.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—The most important convention of its kind ever held in the east, if not in this country, ended here last week, when more than 1,800 stockholders of the United Drug company, and some 600 ladies, members of their families, stood in the immense enclosure at the Boston Arena and united their voices in the chorus of "Auld Lang Syne" as a finale to the annual banquet. It made an impressive sight. The magnitude of everything connected with the banquet cannot be adequately described, for the plans were carried out on a scale commensurate with what the convention represented, a gathering of leading druggists from every section of the North American continent.

For three days business and pleasure were combined. While the program was confined to that length of time, yet the early arrival in Boston of several hundred stockholders allowed these men to fraternize and exchange ideas extemporaneously, and as many are to remain here a few days longer, it means an entire week practically devoted to the interests of the company. This was the eighth convention of those who stand sponsor for the Rexall remedies, and it surpassed its predecessors in every way. Plans which had been perfected after months of work were in such complete shape that there was no possibility of disarrangement, and today President Louis K. Liggett was complimented freely on the success achieved by him and his subordinates. Men of prominence in attendance who have taken part in many national affairs were amazed at the admirable features introduced here, and they were not alone in their praise.

The convention opened last Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. In order to house the large gathering the Boston Arena was secured. This is the largest building in Boston, and while it is arranged to accommodate thousands, it proved none too large for the United Drug company convention. As the stockholders wandered into the building they were surprised and pleased by the efforts in making such an interior into a Roman amphitheater, surrounded by Italian gardens, large white columns rearing their tops into the air, which, with scenic paintings around the walls, gave the necessary perspective to present the illusion that it was outdoors. Naturally the American colors were the flags of England and Canada, and they blended perfectly with the masses of white and green that abounded there. The Roman scheme was carried out further by an esplanade which took the place of the regular entrances and exits, and this accentuated the beauty of the scene. This was especially true at night, when myriads of tiny electric bulbs of different colors glowed from every conceivable crevice and from the centers of beautiful flowers.

President Louis K. Liggett called the convention to order and then he introduced Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston, to the gathering. There were many present who knew Mayor Fitzgerald, and he was given a most hearty reception. The mayor welcomed the visitors to Boston and he told them that he considered it a high tribute to the city that the United Drug company stockholders thought so much of the city that they were willing to sacrifice time in coming long distances to meet here. He also paid a tribute to the company for locating here and adding much to the wealth of the city, not alone in taxes, but also in giving employment to hundreds of men and women. He ended by praising President Liggett for his brilliant conception of the Rexall idea, and the efforts in making such an industrial success. When Mayor Fitzgerald finished he was given an ovation, the cheering lasting several minutes. Then there was an impromptu reception, when the mayor was introduced to many of those from far off points.

The keynote of the business sessions was the advancement of the sale of pure drugs and the prevention of the sale of noxious preparations, so that purchasers might be certain they were getting the best drugs obtainable at the lowest possible price, allowing a fair margin of profit to the dealer. The newer stockholders heard from the older ones how valuable the cooperative idea had been, because it eliminated the middleman; how during the past eight years business had increased largely because the purchasers had confidence in Rexall remedies, and this allowed the company—the largest organization of its kind in the world—to buy its drugs in such wholesale quantities as to permit a great saving. With the natural result that the quality was always bound to be excellent. A large number of the stockholders, having been in business for many years, were able to speak words of wisdom from experience, and their words were listened to carefully, while on the other hand these men were glad to hear the younger men give their opinions, and the assurance of time in coming long distances to meet here. He also paid a tribute to the company for locating here and adding much to the wealth of the city, not alone in taxes, but also in giving employment to hundreds of men and women. He ended by praising President Liggett for his brilliant conception of the Rexall idea, and the efforts in making such an industrial success. When Mayor Fitzgerald finished he was given an ovation, the cheering lasting several minutes. Then there was an impromptu reception, when the mayor was introduced to many of those from far off points.

Tuesday afternoon while the men were attending the business session the ladies were treated to a motor trip. That evening they attended the Tremont theater, the entire house having been bought out for the performance of "The Fortune Hunter," presented by John Barrymore and an all-star cast of New York favorites.

Wednesday was even more of a red-letter day for pleasure, because everyone participated in the outing, which, like everything else that was carried out, was arranged on a mammoth scale. In the morning while the men were attending the business session the ladies were taken to the Riverside recreation grounds in special trolleys. Motor boats and canoes were available for trips up and down the Charles river, while for those who preferred to remain on shore there was an exhibition of fancy swimming and diving by a company of girls who had been performing all summer at one of the big beach resorts. The gentlemen attended their session early and then, arriving there in time for luncheon, the afternoon was devoted to all sorts of outdoor sports. Some of them arranged for the members of the party, the others being for amateurs and professionals. Pretty souvenirs in the way of fancy parasols, hats, caps, etc., were given out as mementoes of the occasion. The special feature of the afternoon was the appearance of Charles Foster Willard, the noted aviator, with one of Glenn Curtiss' biplanes. Mr. Willard soared up in the air and did all sorts of things, to the amazement of the party, many of whom had never seen an aeroplane operated before. The plane was arranged in a series of loops, and it was seen to swoop times close to the ground and again hundreds of feet in the air, turned in circles at sharp angles, dropped miniature bombs down in a circle, and landed with the lightness of a bird after gliding down in graceful sweeps from a high altitude, delighted the onlookers.

Thursday morning while the gentlemen were attending the business session shopping trips were arranged for the ladies. At 1 o'clock they all gathered at the United Drug company laboratories, where a buffet luncheon was served. Then followed an inspection of the laboratories. This proved very interesting, for an exhibition of how various articles that have made the name Rexall famous are manufactured was demonstrated by the experts. The visitors got some idea of the immense plant occupied by their company, which covers six acres of floor space and gives employment to about 1,000 people. A visit was also made to the plant where chloroform is made, and it was seen that everything pertaining to sanitary conditions was in evidence in turning out the high grade Liggett and Fenway confections. This plant employs several hundred people, too.

The banquet Thursday evening was a fitting climax to the three days' convention. While the party was visiting the laboratories a big force of workmen was busily engaged removing the booths in the Boston Arena building and replacing them with tables so that when evening arrived and the gentlemen escorted the ladies arrived at the place the transformation was astonishingly complete. Here again everything was on the same mammoth scale that marked the preceding events. The head table alone was eighty feet long. With thousands of lights shining, the perfume from hundreds of prettily arranged floral decorations pervading the air, delightful music stealing across from the hidden boxes, ladies in beautiful evening gowns, gentlemen in uniform, the scene was a picture of beauty and grandeur. Auto Drivers Put Up the Bars Against the Big Pug

Will Not Race Oldfield if He Enters a Race With Negro Prize Fighter As He Has Agreed.

Indignation caused by the report that one of their number is to enter competition with a negro has caused many of the famous automobile drivers of the country to condemn Barney Oldfield for agreeing to drive a match race against Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion pugilist of the world. "Wild Bob" Burman, the famous driver of Buick and Marquette-Buick racing cars, has entered formal protest against such a race, and voices the sentiments of the majority of white drivers who are gathered in New York for the grand prize race October 15th, when he says:

"Nearly all of us have had an opportunity to drive against Johnson, as he has been seeking match races with nearly every driver in the business, but has been turned down repeatedly. Of course, in a way, it is none of my business if Oldfield sees fit to drive against the negro, but I believe every self-respecting white man will refuse to compete with him, in case he drives the race as announced for October 20.

"Just because Johnson has succeeded in reaching the top in pugilism, it does not alter the fact that he is a negro and is not entitled to prestige in the cleaner and better sport of automobile racing. I have heard a dozen other drivers say they would refuse to have anything more to do with Oldfield in case he enters this race against the black, and I for one, feel justified in voicing my sentiments publicly."

Officials of the A. A. A. have announced that Johnson is not eligible to registration as a driver and further that Oldfield will be subject to outlawing in case he drives the race. Some time ago Johnson was denied the right to drive at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Protest by the white drivers who were to contend at those races caused the speedway management to bar Johnson. In case Oldfield drives against Johnson the first place at which the other drivers will have an opportunity to make a stand in their position is at Atlanta, Nov. 4 and 5. Oldfield is entered at the Atlanta Speedway races, as are many of the drivers who are protesting against the race with Johnson. If Oldfield drives the race against the negro and is allowed to drive at Atlanta, the other drivers say they will refuse to put their cars upon the course. However, the fact that he will become an outlaw after driving the race will leave the Atlanta Speedway management no alternative other than to bar him from the track.

BAD JUDGMENT BEAT CITY LEAGUERS 2 TO 1

Shamrocks Take Second Game of the Series from Pennsylvanians.

Bad judgment around second base beat the Pennsylvanian team in the second game of the Shamrock series and the victory went to Manager Leary and his hurling outfit by a score of 2 to 1.

In the seventh inning with one runner on base and Leary's grounder and Carr drove a runner to short. The ball was near second and instead of stepping on the bag and making the throw to first, Leary tossed it to Lumbach, who had to turn to throw and who made a short peg that allowed the batter to reach first safely. A double play was right and could easily have been pulled off. The same error was performed when Farrell hit to short field and another chance for a double was lost. With Farrell on first Leary was hit by a pitched ball and "Old Centerville" hit safely to center, scoring a run.

The shot leaguers got away with a tally in the first and it looked good until the seventh as only one hit had been made off Leary up to that time. Lumbach hit a ball down along the first base line in the opening inning and it went for two runs as Centerville was playing loose in center for the ball. With two runs on base and Leary in the only run his team made.

With Jack Smith in the discard Reid hit to right in the eighth, moved up when Lumbach beat out a slow roller to short and took a throw from Farrell. Carr scored him on a sacrifice fly, although Bennett made a great throw to the plate and the decision was close. The score:

Notes of the Game.

Benny pitched good ball and although the Shamrocks' bats were mostly idle, they did not get one safe until the fifth when Farrell beat out an infield grounder.

The Shamrocks had men on bases in every inning but the first.

Lauer's work on the bases was good. He stole second and third in the sixth and seventh.

Bennett pitched a good game in center. He featured his work with a dandy catch of Collins' fly in the fourth and saved a run.

The rooting was about evenly divided and the crowd was bigger than that of last Sunday. The final game next Sunday is expected to draw the best attendance.

Carr's work behind the bat was good. He helped everybody that attempted to steal with the exception of Lauer.

Robbins kept the hits scattered and was light with men on base.

Jack Zellers got a hit in the ninth with two men, but Robbins fanned and left him stranded.

Fox Brothers	0	3	.000

The White Fruit House and the Magnolias hooked up in the first game of the season for top honors, both coping three straight in the opening week of the season. Tonight the second week will open with a series between the Hof Brothers and the Centivires.

Capt. Krill and his Hattersleys went to the front Saturday night in the windup when he tossed 24 for the best score of the season and his teammates went above the 1,000 mark in their opening exhibition. The Centivires, however, took the series by winning the second and third games.

PUT 'EM IN A PANIC.

"Putting your opponents in a panic and getting the jump on them," as it were, is the most effective way to win a game in the world's series, says Ty Cobb not long ago. The most conspicuous illustration of this I can recall happened in the fourth inning of the fourth game between the Cubs and Tigers in 1908.

The Cubs were leading by two runs when we went to bat in this inning. Don O'Leary and Crawford hit safely to left. With men on first and second and nobody out it seemed reasonable to expect that we could tie the score if I could sacrifice.

Of course the Cubs knew exactly what we had planned to do and we knew, too, that they were planning to resist precisely that kind of an attack. With O'Leary taking a good lead off second it seemed to me that if I could put the ball toward third base, close to the line I could advance both runners, putting it up to them to decide whether to try to steal or not.

"Brown pitched precisely the kind of a ball I was hoping for and the ball went exactly where I wanted it to go. No sooner had Brown let go of the ball than he darted forward toward the third base foul line. He picked up the ball perhaps ten yards from the plate and a few feet inside the line and whirling about, hurled it with great speed straight into Steinfield's hands.

"Although O'Leary had started with the pitch and with a good lead, he was out by seconds.

"I do not believe that any player on our team doubted from that instant that we were beaten and the game was over. But in the world's series as well, so thoroughly were we rattled and so plainly did we indicate it that the Cubs immediately changed their tactics and, giving no heed to the runners, began an attack on the men on bases.

"As Rossman swung at one of Brown's high offerings Kling hurried the ball to second and Rinker caught Crawford a full yard off the base.

"By this time we were in a fine frenzy. A moment later, too, had contributed my part to the success. When considering the fact that the Cubs were not playing for the year at bat, I started to steal. The ball was wasted and as Kling slammed it to second base I hurried it down with one hand and touched me out on the line.

"Vitality important is it in a world's series to put to rout your opponents-to get them in a demoralized condition wherein they can see danger from afar and know that disaster awaits them."

LEJUENE BREAKS IN WITH A RECORD THROW

Evansville Player Beat All Marks at the Red's Park.

Larry Lejuene wound up his record in the Central league by slapping an umpire in the face and thus depriving himself of a bonus that he could have earned by doing just what he did when he broke the world's long throw record at Chicago yesterday. His mark was 425 feet 6 1/2 inches, which is 25 feet and 10 inches better than his last attempt.

Tom Hainfield had held the record with 400 feet 7 1/2 inches and it stood for thirty-six years.

President Carson of the Central league, promised Lejuene a bonus for beating the record, but withdrew it when, without cause, he slapped Umpire Agur in the last Sunday game at South Bend.

In the game that preceded the contests Lejuene was beaten by Cincinnati in the last game on the Red's park. Beebe was steady and White was hit opportunistically.

Chicago had a hard time beating St. Louis in the game on the Red's. Cole was hit only four times, but the hits were in clusters and came near defeating him. The scores:

Sporting News in Tablets

The season in the American league closed yesterday. Ty Cobb has joined the all-star club that will play Philadelphia until the opening of the Championship series.

McCarthy played again with Pittsburgh yesterday and failed to get a hit. He had an error out of five chances. Jackson, the Cleveland outfielder, recruited, batted .379 in seventeen games that he played.

John Somerlott played sixteen games with Washington and hit .238. He was in the city yesterday on his way home from Washington and stopped long enough to see the Shamrocks play the Pennsylvania team.

The story comes from South Bend that Grant will sell out and take the management of the Fort Wayne team. He had a good season last year and the story is not probable.

Clair Patterson hit .411 in 29 games for the Quinley team. He led the league handily. Ted Kaylor played 100 games and hit .304. Bode Myers hit .260.

Walter Johnson has persuaded Dixie Walker to go to night school so that he can at least learn to read and write.

Springfield, Ohio, which has been trying to break into the Central league ever since it lost a team it would not support, and Covington, Ky., are mentioned as possibilities for next season.

Up to the time he was injured Rob Beecher had taken part in every game his club played during the season and was out after a record for stolen bases.

Eddie Collins kicked on laying out of the remaining games to rest up for the world's series, but compromised by saying he would play half of each and allow a recruit to play half.

Edward "Goat" Anderson is mentioned as one of the men who will fill a managerial berth in the Central league next season.

Jack Morrissey says that although he knew Kalamazoo lost its right to the pennant by taking on Central league players, he will be willing to call the race a tie so his players could get the extra money out of the post-season games.

Bill Armour has forty-nine men under contract to his Toledo team.

Frank Farrell may not want George Stallings because Sam Johnson says no, but Robert Lee Hodges, of the St. Louis Browns, is on the outs with Johnson and wants a new manager and likes Stallings. Mayhap he'll have the deposed boss of the Yanks at the head of the Browns next year.

MRS. C. R. CROSS IS DEAD.

Former Fort Wayne Woman Passes Away at White Plains, N. Y.

Mrs. Minnie Maxwell Cross, wife of Charles W. Cross, died in White Plains, N. Y., on Sunday of cancer of the liver.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cross have a large circle of friends in this city. Mrs. Cross was born here about forty-five years ago and after completing her studies in the public schools became a teacher in the schools. Her marriage to Mr. Cross, who at that time was master mechanic of the Western division of the Pennsylvania road took place at the bride's home in Douglas avenue.

In 1887, a few years afterwards Mr. Cross was transferred to Elkhart and they lived there for a number of years, going from there to Allegheny, Pa., and later to White Plains, where Mr. Cross is superintendent of apprentices of the New York Central railroad.

Mrs. Cross was a charming woman who made friends wherever she went. Her personality was unusually pleasing and her character was a high type of beautiful womanhood. Mrs. Cross left three sons besides her husband and a number of brothers and sisters, all of whom were present at the time of her death as her sickness had been of several months' time. About a year ago Mrs. Cross made her last visit in this city, being guest then of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis. At that time she was apparently in the best of health. The immediate relatives surviving besides the husband and sons are the sisters, Mrs. George Bruner, of Kokomo; Mrs. Henry Lefferts and Charles Newell, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mrs. Ned Hendry, of White Plains, N. Y., and George Newell, of Andrews, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis left this afternoon for White Plains, N. Y., to attend the funeral which will be held tomorrow afternoon.

"JAPAN FIGHTS SOCIALISM."

Great Crusade is Undertaken by the Authorities.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 10.—A great crusade against socialists was being undertaken by the Japanese authorities when the empress of India left Yokohama Sept. 27. Numerous arrests of socialist advocates were made and books on socialism were seized at book stores. The campaign followed the discovery of an alleged plot against the emperor, of which official denials were made. The authorities stated that one party of socialists arrested was discovered making bombs. A special court was organized to try the conspirators secretly. Letters smuggled out from Miss Kano Suga, a socialist leader, stated that she and her associates expected death sentences.

NOTICED BALD SPOT COMING ON HEAD

Interesting Story of Consultation with Dermatologist and Successful Use of Cuticura. Also Case of Severe Ivy Poisoning, Relief of Which by Cuticura was Permanent.

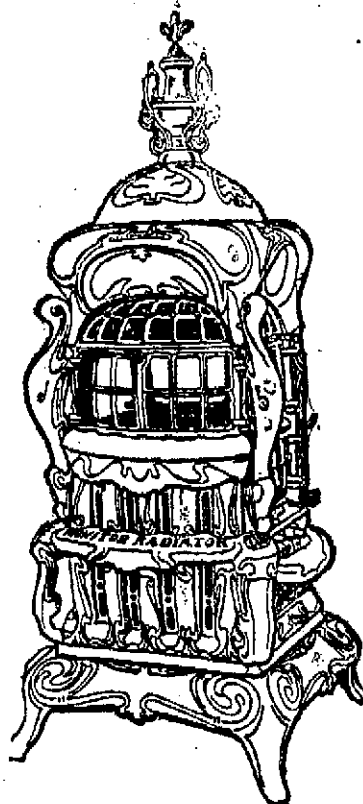

"Nine years ago I noticed a bald spot coming on my head and, as I was only nineteen years old, it did not seem natural, as it was on the side of my head instead of on top. My mother advised my seeing a dermatologist and I did so, one of the best in Boston, and he said it was due to a germ I must have got at the barber's. He couldn't assure a cure, but by treating each hair separately by electricity, he said, the hair might come out, white or gray, if it came out at all. He proposed giving me a treatment every month for six months at ten dollars a treatment. When I told my mother the advice, using Cuticura and this I did, using Cuticura Soap and Ointment every day. In two months my hair commenced to grow, and in six months one would never have known there had been any trouble, the hair coming out being black, the exact shade of my own. I have never had any trouble since, and feel I can't say half enough for Cuticura. Another member of our family was terribly poisoned by poison ivy and every summer for six years the blisters came, bursting and causing great suffering. We tried everything recommended by the best physicians, but with no good result. Finally we tried Cuticura and obtained relief in a very short time which was permanent. She has never had any trouble since. So Cuticura is invaluable to us, you see. G. J. Browne, 1 Remington St., Dorchester, Mass., Jan. 29, 1910."

This letter is but one of hundreds giving proof of the success of the Cuticura Remedies in treating the skin and scalp. Foster Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

CRYSTAL GAZING IN EVERY AGE AND LAND

Crystal gazing, or "scrying," is meeting with a revival that is likely to develop a cult. It has been made fami-lar to the theater-going public by the crystal gazing scene in Ethel Barry-more's play, "Her Sister," and novel readers will recall the chapter in John Uri Lloyd's "String Town on the Pike," in which the old negro, who is the leading character in that fascinating tale, reveals to Prof. Samuel Drew his past and future life by means of a black mirror.

All the world over man seems to have discovered that pictures or visions can be seen in a crystal ball, a speculum or some clear depth, and naturally uses it, as in the case with no small section of society in our own day, for the purpose of discovering the future, or trying to do so, or of finding out what is going on at a distance. It has been found that from the Australian black-fellows to the Maoris, the Samoyeds, the Iroquois, the Incas, the Aztecs, the Malagases, the negroes, the Arabs, the Egyptians and the mediaeval European nations, all were crystal gazers.

The universality and antiquity of the practice is to be taken as proof that all "scryers" are not practical jokers.
If they saw no pictures at all in crystals, polished basalt, obsidian mirrors, blood drops, ink, water, livers of animals, and so on, it is not in nature that it should go on scrying. They must have made the discovery of the faculty by accident, like the woman who, as a child, amused herself by scrying in ink; and like George Sand, who, in childhood, used the polished back of a screen, and appears never to have heard of any other instance of the practice.

Not all persons have the faculty.
Some persons can and others cannot,
"see" pictures, not voluntarily or consciously evoked and "visualized," in a smooth deep. This is a circumstance in human psychology quite as curious as the visions of colored lines of numerals, established by Mr. Francis Galton. The modern scryer commonly uses a polished crystal ball, but any substance having a clear depth will do.
In New Zealand the more civilized Maori use a drop of blood for their speculum. Among the Fijians, when goods had been stolen, a priest looked into a hole dug in the floor of the house and filled with water. The belief was that a god brought the image of the thief over the water, in which it is reflected.

In West Australia the medicine-man "puts himself into the crystal," to descrie the result of a distant expedition. In South America the Hualluche treasure-seekers look earnestly for the object of their search into a smooth slab of black stone. Captain Bourke found a crystal gazing Jossakeed among the Apaches of the west, and Lejune describes how the Indian doctors made their patients prescribe for themselves by the simple method of gazing into water, wherein they saw pictures of the things that would do them good—a simple method of enlisting the powers of suggestion.
Among the Iroquois the crystal was placed in a gourd of water to render visible the apparition of a person who has bewitched another, exactly as they do in the Hebrides to this day.

In Yucatan the main instrument of the diviner is the Zactun (the clear stone), a quartz crystal or similar object, before which he burns gumcopal as an incense, and recites magic formulas in an arcane dialect. This done, the stone has the power of reflecting the past and the future. The soothsayer gazes into its clear depths and sees where lost articles are reposing, learns what is happening to the absent and by whose witchery sickness and disaster have descended upon those who have called him in to their aid. It is said that nearly every village in Yucatan has one of these stones.

In Japan black boxes are said to be used. The Indian Mohammedans use "viewing of Unjun (lamp black) or the magic mirror." For the purpose of ascertaining where goods are concealed, or the condition of the sick, who are possessed by the devil, or where treasure has been buried, they apply unjun to the palms of a child or adult, and desire him to stare well at it.

In Africa crystal gazing seems to be common. Mr. Lang cites a case from Madagascar where a woman is alleged to have seen a French vessel on its way thither and to have recognized its occupants weeks before the ship was in sight of land. The Africans of Fez used a vessel of water and at the present day a pool of ink is in use in Egypt.

Many instances of Egyptian scrying are related by Lane, Laborde, Kingleke and Miss Martineau, but as most of them have been often printed they are more or less familiar to readers of occult literature and will be omitted.

Within recent years quite a literature has been published on crystal gazing. Andrew Lang collected a large number of illustrative cases in his book on the "Making of Religion." Prof.
F. W. H. Myers' great series of papers on the subliminal consciousness contains an interesting chapter on the subject, and the latest is a book on crystal gazing by Northcote W.
Thomas, with an introduction by Andrew Lang.

Mr. Lang does not himself possess the faculty of "seeing" things, but he has no doubt that others do. He relates the following incident:

"I went the hall to a Miss Balfour, who only then saw, I think, an old fashioned piece of furniture. Her brother laughed at her, and took the hall into the study, whence he returned looking perplexed.
He admitted that he had seen a person whom he knew, under a lamp. This was at about 5 p. m. on a Sunday, at St. Andrews. He would find on Tuesday he said, whether he had been right or wrong. On Tuesday Mr. Balfour met at a dance in Edinburgh, a woman, Miss Grant."

"On Sunday, at 5 o'clock, he said, 'you were seated under a standard lamp, making tea. A man in blue serge was beside you; his back was towards me; I saw the lift of his moustache. You were a dress (described) that I never saw you wearing.'"

"Were the blinds up?" asked she.
"I don't know; I was at St. Andrews," said Mr. Balfour.
The young woman said that all the facts were correct, and she and Mr. Balfour wrote out and signed a report of the incident.
Not long afterwards Mr. Balfour lunched with me. We spoke of "Miss X," Miss Goodrich-Freer and her experiments, on the links before luncheon. Attending in my study, Mr. Balfour, who was smoking, gazed into a glass bowl of water. He saw as much of a house as you do see from the hall; the arrangements as to the flooring, doors, windows and staircase, was of a kind unknown to us both. A white Persian cat, in the picture, walked down the stairs. The picture lasted for several minutes, several changes in the lighting of the room.
When I drew down the blinds the picture remained, but the large window opposite the front door, which had been there a long time, disappeared. I happened later to meet Miss Goodrich-Freer, whom Mr. Balfour had never seen in his life, and told her what he believed.
"My house, my Persian cat," said she.
"I had never been in this house, but visited it on my return to town. Mr.

STONE IN KIDNEY

An interesting case was that of Mr. H.
L. McDuffee, a member of the firm of H.
C. De Wolfe & Co., of the Crocker Building, San Francisco.

The case was puzzling. There was pain in the kidney with a showing of blood. Examination by seven physicians proved that the blood was from the kidney and it was the opinion of all that there was a stone cutting the kidneys, as the least exercise caused a showing of blood.

Four X-Ray pictures were taken. Three of them showing a stone half an inch in diameter. To be certain that it was a stone that cast the shadow, a similar stone about the same size taken from a patient was put under him for comparison.
—both stones showing on the plate.

An operation was about decided upon when Fulton's Renal Compound was recommended to Mr. McDuffee. He feared the knife and gave it a trial.

Within ten weeks the blood and pain had ceased and in six months he considered himself well.

We also have a three-page letter from an old-school physician, a lecturer in one of the San Francisco Medical Colleges, covering a similar case of stone in the kidney. An operation seemed inevitable.

He prescribed Fulton's Renal Compound upon the theory that as it was getting results in Negritude it ought to have some effect to reduce the inflammation and excessive uric acid that attends Calculus. He was so surprised to get a complete recovery that he thought a record ought to be made of it and gave us the letter above referred to.

Fulton's Renal Compound seems to have about the same percentage of efficiency in stone in the kidney that it has shown in Bright's disease.

Balfour's description of what he saw in the picture was absolutely correct, but the Persian cat was out of its existence, however, is amply attested.

Possibly many crystal pictures, unidentified, have their actual model somewhere, but the prototype in this case was discovered by the latest chance.

Mr. Lang relates another experiment.
A young kinswoman, Miss Gregor, being the "scryer." A Miss Hamilton was to think of someone; Miss Gregor was to see the object of her thought. Miss Gregor saw a lady, "like your mother, but not your mother. Her complexion is ruddy, her eyes are brown, she is dressed in black, her hair is white," and she described the coiffure. I at once recognized the description, that of a lady well known to me, whom Miss Gregor had never seen. "It is right," said Miss Hamilton. "I was thinking of my aunt, my mother's sister."

Among the best reported cases is one in which Sir Joseph Barnby was the chief witness. He had gone to Longford castle for a wedding, leaving Lady Barnby at Eastbourne. One day between the 14th and 15th day of August, 1839, Miss A. says Sir Joseph looked into her crystal and described a bedroom.

She appeared to be viewing the room from just outside the open door for she said:

"There is a bed in the room it must be behind the door to the left; in any case the room was a long one, and the end was occupied by a large window.
She added: 'There is a lady in the room drying her hands on a towel.' She described her as tall, dark, slightly foreign in appearance, and with rather a stern expression. This described with such astonishing accuracy my wife and the room she was then occupying that I was impelled to ask for particulars as to dress, etc. She stated that the dress was of serge, with a good deal of braid on the bodice, and a strip of braid down one side of the skirt. This threw me off the room. I had expressed regret before I started for Longford that she had not a serge dress with her. My astonishment, therefore, was great on returning to Eastbourne to find my wife wearing a serge dress exactly answering to the description given above.

The sequel to this incident comes some sixteen months later on, when my wife and I were attending a performance given by the "Magpie minstrels" (a society of musical amateurs) at Prince's hall, Piccadilly. We arrived early, and after placing my wife in a seat I moved about the room speaking to friends here and there. In the course of ten minutes or so Lady Barnby and Miss A. entered the room. During the greetings which ensued Miss A. called my attention to a standing figure, saying: "You will remember my seeing a lady in her bedroom while I was looking in my crystal; that is the lady I saw." That was my wife. I need only add that she had never seen my wife.

Lady Barnby, writing in the same month as her husband, three years after the event makes the following statement:

The account about me and my dress is remarkable, as being out of the general remarking to Sir Joseph that it was a mission to come to the seaside without a serge dress, that being a material particularly suited for wear at the seaside, but I added: "I do not think it is much use ordering one now, as Madame D. will be gone for her holiday, it being August."

Sir Joseph left the next day for Longford, and I wrote to Madame D., telling her to make me the gown. She got the letter on Tuesday (the 15th of August, 1839), and in the marvellously short time by Saturday I received the gown. Then, again, it is not unusual in a hotel to have one's bedroom door open when one is occupying the room, but the reason for it on this occasion was the fact that I was to meet Sir Joseph on his return from Longford (Tuesday, 20th of August, 1839)
—as a surprise, in the new serge gown—and having no clock in our bedroom, which was at the end of the corridor, with my daughter's room at an angle to ours, where she slept with her maid, I—thinking I was somewhat late for meeting the train—opened the door to call the maid to tell me the time, as I washed my hands standing at the washstand in a line with the open door. I do not suppose I have ever done such a thing at a hotel before or since.

Although this narrative was first written three years after the event, it is important to notice that the dates were confirmed by Lady Barnby's diary and that the maid confirms the statement as to the dress being first worn August 20.

Examples might be multiplied, but space forbids. The phenomena have been variously explained as mere fig-ments of the imagination, as the results of thought transference, as hypnagogic illusions, which means illusive appearances introducing sleep.

Summing up the matter Mr. Lang says: "I believe that some crystal gazers are, somehow, enabled to 'see' things which are actual, but of which crystal gazing apart, they have and can have no knowledge. I have no con-

INDEPENDENCE HALL HAS BEEN STANDING 175 YEARS.

Famous Old Liberty Cradle in Philadelphia Has a Long History and Story of Thrilling Interest as Well as Variety—Some of the Errors Concerning It Corrected—Shrine of Patriotic Devotion in City of Brotherly Love.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—Although so much visited and so much written about, there is very little accurate popular understanding of the history of Independence hall, of the alterations that it has undergone and of its present contents, priceless almost as itself. Its construction was begun in 1732, about fifty years after the first landing of William Penn at the site of Philadelphia, near the house known as the Blue Anchor tavern. It is ascribed sometimes to the working of an inscrutable destiny that Independence hall should have been made ready for the occupancy of the provincial assembly and the governor's council virtually at the exact time when the colonies of Great Britain in America began to feel their growing strength sufficiently to induce them to insist more than ever before upon the right to be specially mindful of their own interests.

It was only a quarter of a century after the "Old Liberty Bell" was cast by patriotic artisans in this city that it was used to gather the people to hear the proclamation, by order of the continental congress, of the absolute political separation of the thirteen colonies from the mother country. The state house sheltered not only the continental congress during many critical sessions, but also the supreme council of the federation of the United States, the constitutional convention of 1787, the supreme court of the United States and the provincial and state legislature of Pennsylvania in that long period of the conception, birth and infancy of the western republic.

Every man of any distinction whatever in that great epoch, from Andrew Hamilton and Benjamin Franklin to Lafayette and Pulaski, passed through its portals. It is the silent surviving witness of a stupendous past—so stupendous, indeed, that hardly anything is more wonderful than the absolute simplicity of the austere stage setting of those dramatic actions which indirectly transformed the whole political world.

Early Shifts of Public Bodies.
William Penn's council of state first met in George Guest's unfinished house near the mouth of Dock creek, afterward called the Blue Anchor tavern. Settlers at that time were living in caves along the banks of the Delaware river. It is also supposed to have met in the Swedes' church at Wicaco, down the river, and in William Penn's house in Locustia city, the same which now stands in Fairmount park, until it removed to the new state house in 1747. The provincial assembly sat in the first rough meeting house erected for the worship of Friends shortly after Penn's arrival, and then in the later one on Front street known as the Bank meeting house. But it also sat elsewhere, sometimes in houses that were erected for private use.

It was in January, 1729, that the assembly, awake finally to the need of a suitable provincial capitol, voted $2,000 toward its cost and appropriated the same out of an issue of paper money which it had just authorized. William Allen, who was afterward one of Philadelphia's most famous mayors and became a justice of the supreme court, acted as the agent of the province in the purchase of the lots of ground on Chestnut street, from Fifth to Sixth, and extending half way back toward Walnut street, which formed the chosen site. It was not until 1769 that the remainder of the square was acquired. Doctor Kearsley, the architect of Christ church, aspired also to design the state house, and is said to have been disgruntled because he was not permitted to do so. Thomas Lawrence, Andrew Hamilton and Dr. John Kearsley composed the building committee. For a great many years credit for the architecture of the state house was given to Dr. Kearsley, whose success in the designing of Christ church had gained him great prestige.

That Hamilton was the architect, however, has been established to the satisfaction of historians. Hamilton assiduously superintended the entire execution of his plans. Lawrence and Kearsley dropping wholly into the background. The ground was broken for the beginning of construction in the spring of 1732. In the next year the assembly authorized the erection of wings.

First Festivity in the State House.
The main structure, minus the great tower, which had not yet been built, was in a rough state when, in September, 1735, William Allen, the mayor, gave a banquet and frolic in the long room in the second story, which was to be the scene of so many later revelries and solemnities as well. Since the comparatively recent restoration of this fine chamber one can gain a rather vivid idea as to how it must have appeared on some of those occasions.
In the next month, although the windows of its own chamber on the ground floor, the one afterward used by the continental congress, had not yet been fully glazed, the assembly took possession of it. Andrew Hamilton had been elected speaker for the seventh time. Franklin paid to this statesman after his death a superb tribute. As a lawyer his crowning distinction in a long and disinterested life was the defense of Peter Zenger, in New York, in the great trial that established in the colonies the principle of the freedom of the press. It was Governor Morris who called Andrew Hamilton "the daystar of the American republic."

Public contractors were dilatory in those days as in these, and it was not until 1748 that the room of the assembly in the state house was completed. It is curious to note that it was heated at that time by means of two open stoves, although provided with immense chimney-places, and that these stoves cost about $25, provincial money. The second room prepared for regular occupancy was the western one of the provincial supreme court which first sat there were John Kinsey, Thomas Graeme and William Tilt. The west chamber on the second floor was occupied by the governor's council for the first time in October, 1747. Until 1750 the tower of the state house terminated at about the height of the roof of the main structure, and to put a steeple upon it does not seem to have been contemplated at all. In that year, however, this was determined upon, together with the raising of the tower another story.

A bell, probably brought from England by William Penn, was hung in a tree near the governor's headquarters as early as 1683 and rung when it was desired to bring the people together on occasions of solemnity. It is believed to have been transferred to the cupola of the old court house in High (Market) street about 1697, and afterward to have been placed temporarily in the East India company, backed by the ministry, intended to "crash down the throats" of the Americans, an immense meeting was held in state house yard. Boston's "tea party" was highly approved, and such representations were made to the captain of the Polly, representations that meant dire mischief if not heeded, that the good ship never got nearer to this city than Chester.

Adoption of the Declaration.
When news of the Lexington-Concord fight in April, 1775, arrived, the bell in the state house steeple again called 8,000 people together, and they unanimously agreed to defend with arms their lives, liberty and property. The climax of the first period of the struggle was fast approaching. The second continental congress met in the state house on May 10, 1775, the provincial assembly having yielded to it the chamber that was ever after to be sanctified by its labors. In June, 1776, began the debating of the question of independence. The preliminary resolution proposed by Richard Henry Lee, of Virginia, declaring that the colonies "are of right and ought to be free and independent states" was adopted in committee on the night of June 10, but it was not until June 28 that the draft of the Declaration of Independence was submitted to congress. On July 1 congress adopted the resolution, and that day and the three following were devoted to discussion in committee of the whole of the declaration itself. It was passed on the evening of the 4th.

How Independence Was Proclaimed.
Some popular notions of the scene and its surroundings, based upon the imaginings of irresponsible writers, have been most erroneous. "Congress sat," says Etting, "as was customary with deliberate bodies in that day, with closed doors, each member pledged to secrecy." No immense crowd besieged the portals of congress on that day or evening, and no "blue-eyed boy" ran to tell "grandpa" to ring out the glad tidings of liberty.

There was no reading of the declaration from the balcony or steps of the state house by Charles Thompson, the secretary of congress. It was not until July 5 that the official promulgation of independence was ordered by John Hancock, the president of the congress. Printed copies were sent forth. But the verbal proclamation in the city was ordered by the committee of safety, and took place on Monday, July 8, in the "state house yard."

John Nixon, a member of the committee, read the declaration standing on the platform of the astronomical observatory erected by David Rittenhouse some years before for the purpose of watching, for the first time in America with an adequate telescope, a transit of Venus. Nixon's reading, it is said, was clear and distinct enough to be understood by persons standing on the east side of Fifth street. A vast concourse of people greeted it with huzzas and cheers. They then proceeded to tear down the insignia of royal authority wherever they could be found. There were bonfires and impromptu fireworks in the evening, which was beautifully starlit. The tongue of "Old Liberty" spoke then as never before, with louder, sweeter and longer clamor, and the bells of Christ church responded in merry chorus.

Engraved on Parchment.
Not until August 2 was the Declaration of Independence engraved on parchment. Three copies of it, according to one tradition, were signed in the independence chamber, one of which now hangs there, behind the table and chair used by John Hancock and George Washington, the former while presiding over the continental congress, the latter over the constitutional convention. The original is preserved in the state department at Washington and lately has shown such indications of crumbling away that President Roosevelt some time ago ordered that it be kept in a locked safe.

Many more impressive events and ceremonies took place at Independence hall. The British defied it with cruelty to American prisoners during the occupation of Philadelphia by the troops of General Howe. The flags captured by the American and French at Yorktown were received here by congress. The second inauguration of Washington as president and that also of John Adams took place in what is now known as Congress hall, adjoining the state house to the west, which was not built until 1787-9. It was here that congress received the news of the death of Washington.

Contents of the Old State House.
Much work of restoration has made Independence hall what it is today. In general, this work has been directed by careful study of the past. Zealous cooperation of organized bodies and individuals has also wrought together in the state house many objects of venerable value as illustrative of the early days of the nation. The stranger naturally desires a succinct, serviceable statement of the things of peculiar interest that the state house contains.
The declaration chamber, where the continental congress and the constitutional convention sat, is, with the exception of a new flooring, substantially in the same state in which it was then. The walls are hung with portraits of many of the signers of the Declaration of Independence or the constitution, many of them painted by contemporaneous artists. A portrait of Washington preserved here is by Peale. Here are the chair and table used by the presiding officers of both bodies, Hancock and Washington, and many of the chairs occupied by the members or delegates. On the president's table is the silver inkstand used in signing both the Declaration of Independence and the constitution.
Opposite the Declaration chamber, in the western part of the main building, the judicial chamber is entered through wide, open arches, of which there are three, supported by columns. There is here the quaint bench occupied by the justices of the United States supreme court, and over it and elsewhere are hung portraits of McKean, Chew, Allen and others. In the middle of the floor stands William Rush's remarkable heroic statue of George Washington carved in wood.

Where the Bell Hangs.
In the rear portion of the main lobby of the state house is the Liberty bell, useless except as a sacred memorial of the past. It is suspended upon the same framework of timbers which formerly held it in place in the tower, but which now rests on the floor. Passing up the grand stairway, some of the most noteworthy portraits in the collection are found upon its walls. Among them are those of Washington, Lafayette, William Penn, Louis XVI, George III and Governor James Hamilton, the figures being of full length and heroic size.
The long room, or banqueting hall, in the second story, contains a sofa, chair and pew bench used by George Washington, the last mentioned in Christ church; West's painting of the treaty-making scene of the great elm tree, portraits of Martha Washington, the British sovereigns of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries from and including Charles II to George II, and many notables, both civil and military, of the revolutionary period. The two other rooms on this floor are similarly enriched.
Other Portraits and Mementoes.
Among the portraits in the state house the following by distinguished artists should be mentioned.
By Charles Wilson Peale—John Hancock, president of the continental congress; Richard Henry Lee, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, John Dickinson, Robert Morris, Benjamin Rush, Charles Carroll, Henry Laurens and Thomas Mifflin.
By James Peale—George Washington.
By Rembrandt Peale—George Washington.
By Etter, after Martin—Benjamin Franklin.
There are a great many portraits of generals and other officers by Peale and other contemporary artists, among them being:
Philip Schuyler, Israel Putnam, Horatio Gates, Nathaniel Greene, Lafayette, Baron de Kalb, Baron von Steuben, Henry Knox, Anthony Wayne, George Clinton, Daniel Morgan, Harry Lee, Comte de Rochambeau, Paul Jones, Nicholas Biddle and John Barry. The two wings of the state house, east and west, are filled with colonial and revolutionary relics and are dominated by the National museum. They perhaps contain more of this nature than is of curious interest than the main building. Here will be found Washington's death mask, his Masonic apron and a punch bowl used by his officers.

Rheumatism in Ankles

One Bottle of Rheuma Cured Woman Who Could Not Walk.

Marvelous as this story may seem, it is absolutely true; but this is only one of the many almost magical cures that Rheuma is performing these days. Mrs. Gertrude Kozel, Smithfield, Pa., writes on Feb. 14, 1910: "I had Rheumatism for over a year; it settled in my ankles and I could not walk. I have taken one bottle of Rheuma and do not have any more pain, and I can again walk at will."

Meyer Bros. Co. will sell any reader of The Sentinel a bottle of Rheuma for 50 cents, and guarantee it to cure any case of any kind of Rheumatism or money back.

Gratifying relief comes in a day, because Rheuma acts at one time on the kidneys, stomach, liver and blood, and starts to rid the entire system of poisonous Uric Acid at once.

Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by Rheuma Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Write for free trial bottle.

English Marhu is the real remedy for indigestion. 25 cents at Meyer Bros. Co., or mailed by Rheuma Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

Mrs. Will Link, of Fourth street, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. L. T. Felt, of Van Wert, O.

Miss Emma Rodenbeck returns today from a five weeks' visit in New York and Washington.

Mrs. Harry Ervin, of Van Wert, O., is visiting her niece, Mrs. Reuben S. Patterson.

Miss Lillian Elie was given a surprise that afforded her great pleasure on Thursday evening by a number of friends who remembered that the day was her natal anniversary. Progressive Pedro was the amusement. Prizes were won by Misses Lucile House and Ellen Hoffman. Even the decorations had been looked after by those who arranged the surprise and pink and white flowers added beauty to the room. There were present Misses Alice Hoppel, Lucile House, Belle Rogier, Anna Lotz, Ellen Hoffman, Mrs. Arthur Myers, Molly Schreyer, Lola Bekels and Nora Schreyer.

Mrs. James E. J. Taylor, H. H. Schenck, George Becker, W. D. Kyle and J. C. Stahlhut, all of whom are sisters, left today for Lancaster, O., to attend the golden wedding anniversary of an aunt, Mrs. Alice Ramlar and to visit in Columbus, Carroll and Lockport, O., for the rest of the week.

Miss Elizabeth Rawley entertained yesterday at her home in Collingwood the following ladies: Miss Elsie Wolfgram, Miss Pearl Neal, Miss Elida Klaus, Miss Loretta Boverforden, Miss Clara Reinkenmeier and Mrs. Kavanaugh.

Mrs. Edith Andrews has returned from a four weeks' trip by water, which included stops at Buffalo, Duluth and intermediate Lake points. Mrs. Andrews was accompanied by Mrs. M. T. Stokes, of Coudersport, Pa., who was her guest during the time. At present Mrs. Stokes is in Chicago, and will be the guest of Mrs. Andrews a little later in the month.

A pleasant surprise party of Sunday evening was the one given Louis West at his home in Smith street in celebration of his natal anniversary. A part of the entertainment furnished by the guests was a recitation by Charles Albrecht. Those who took part in this good time were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Albrecht, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guth and family, Fred Schomburg, Ernest Broekmeyer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred West and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Hirschman and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Witte and son, Albert, Mr. and Mrs. John Reinevald, Mrs. Louise Miller and Misses Minnie and Lena Speckman and Minnie Zimmerman.

Lavine-Dinius.

Mr. Boston Lavine, of this city, and Miss Cleo Dinius, of Huntington, were married in that city on Saturday by Rev. E. W. Cole. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dinius. Mr. Lavine is a machinist and is employed at the Pennsylvania shops.

THE DEATHS.

MILLER.

Mrs. Lena Miller, wife of Nicholas Miller, residing at 502 Masterson avenue, died Saturday evening at Richmond after an illness which had extended over a period of one year. Mrs. Miller was 43 years of age.

She was born and reared in Fort Wayne, was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church and is survived by the husband and seven children—Harvey, Clark, Leon, Robert and Irene Miller, Mrs. Charles Berghoff and Mrs. Edna Doolittle, the latter residing at Whiting. There is also a brother, George Rose, of Hillsdale, Mich., and two sisters—the Misses Annie and Louise Rose, of Chicago.

Funeral services Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the residence and at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's Catholic church.

HAUG.

Mrs. Susan Haug, 86 years of age, died Saturday at the home of her son, Martin Wagner, three miles south of Fort Wayne. Mrs. Haug was a native of Ohio, coming to Indiana in 1852. She was twice married, and is survived by six children and several grandchildren.

Funeral services Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the Presbyterian church a mile south of the Wagner home.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

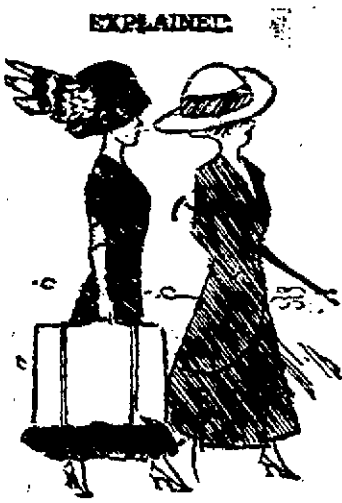

Lapp—Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Lapp will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the residence of the daughter, Mrs. William Goeglein, in St. Joseph township, and at 2 o'clock from St. Peter's Lutheran church at Goeglein.

WHAT'S DOING IN A POLITICAL WAY

With Congressman Cline and Judge Heaton, rivals in the congressional race, each devoting his oratorical attention to Allen county this week, the local campaign promises to start in earnest. Mr. Cline will inaugurate the week with an address at Abbot Center this evening, where Attorney Harry Hildeman will also speak. Sheldon, Woodburn and Arcola will then be visited in order on succeeding evenings during the week, and on Friday, Mr. Cline will resume his meetings at Monroeville on Saturday evening, speaking with Judge O'Rourke on Monday next. Mr. Cline and John W. Eggenman will address an Adams township meeting at 1619 East Wayne street.

Mr. Bryan will be in the Twelfth district Friday, speaking at Auburn in the afternoon and at Columbia City in the evening. For this reason local democrats scheduled no Allen county meetings for that date.

Judge Heaton, the republican nominee for congress, will devote Monday and Thursday evenings of this week to addresses in this city. On Tuesday evening he will speak at Hoagland with Samuel Hyndman, C. S. Bash and A. T. Lukens; on Wednesday evening at Arcola with Mr. Hyndman, T. J. Logan and Mr. Bash, and on Friday evening at Woodburn.

In addition to Senator Beveridge, the republicans are seeking to secure speaking dates to bring Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, and Senator Borah, of Idaho, to Fort Wayne before the close of the present campaign.

NEW SCREEN WAGON BIDS.

Main Transportation Contract to Expire Next June.

Postmaster Hanna has received authority to advertise for bids for the transportation of mails between the postoffice and the railroad depots in Fort Wayne, officially known as the screen wagon service. The new contract to be let will become effective January 1 next for a term of four years.

Henry F. Schroeder is the present mail messenger at a figure of $2,300 per year, but those in position to know believe that with the increased work the price must go higher. At least three wagons and four or five horses must be maintained, and at least three men are required to handle the business. The removal of the Wabash depot to Broadway this summer added materially to the work of the screen wagon department.

ALL FOR ONE WITH VENGEANCE.

Oldham, Eng., Oct. 10.—The cotton mills of Lancashire resumed operations today. George Howe, a local employee, whose discharge caused the strike at the Fern mill and resulted in the lockout of 120,000 operatives was given work in another factory. In one week the lockout cost the workers half a million dollars in wages and depleted the union funds by $200,000.

CARUSO GETS SWORD STAB.

Berlin, Oct. 10.—During the last act of "Carmen" last night, Enrico Caruso received an accident thrust of a sword in his knee. The wound is not considered serious.

TWENTY-EIGHT PAGES.

TWENTY-EIGHT PAGES

At least twelve pages more of good reading matter than any other Fort Wayne evening paper gives you.

Not only does THE SENTINEL give its readers the news of the entire world, gathered by the magnificent ASSOCIATED PRESS, the greatest news-gathering association that the world has ever known, but it also gives everything of interest that happens in our home city and surrounding territory, and in addition to all this it gives its readers page after page of

Written by the brightest writers in the country and illustrated by artists of world-wide reputation.

Next Saturday there will be full page articles on the following:

The Widow Wise.

In verse and pictures. Two colors. This time the lively widow exhibits her pet dog at the bench show and gets a blue ribbon. She invites the judge to tea. The next time he calls he brings his bull dog along. The "bull" chews up the widow's pet and the handsome judge is crossed off her eligible list.

Learning to Make Irish Crochet Lace

Is the subject of the Misses' page. Illustrations of the dainty patterns and how to make them. The Art of Curtain Making. The Newest Mourning Hats, Serving Tea, the New Hatpin and the Convenient Blouse Box are all subjects discussed on this interesting page.

"Play Ball" in Politics

"Pop" Anson tells of heroes of the diamond who are making good in other fields, as candidate for governor and a famous old ball player who is now out after a United States senatorship. Pictures of "Pop" Anson, A. G. Spalding, A. P. Gorman and John K. Turner, all of whom were heroes of the field and are now men of national prominence in other walks of life. Interesting anecdotes about the old-timers.

My Lady of the Pigeons

A handsomely illustrated page on raising and marketing of pigeons and squabs, and how it may be done with profit by dainty young women. The story of Miss Jeanette and Myrtle Bohannon, and views of the Knollside pigeon farm. How the squabs come into the world, are cared for and marketed under the best of sanitary conditions.

Treasure Seekers in Desperate Battle With Head Hunters

A thrilling page, with illustrations, telling of Col. Etienne Bazin, a soldier of fortune, in his South Pacific quest for treasures and his find of a remarkably ruined city and finally the place of buried gold, and his narrow escape from death at the hands of the fierce Solomon Islanders.

Skibby Introduces "Five Pants"

Skibby meets with "Five Pants" when in trouble with the "Bruiser" gang. The "Bruisers" rob him of his No. 2's and Skibby takes him to the judge to tell his troubles. "Five Pants" has a business that is unique and the judge predicts that he will some day rival John D. in wealth. Skibby and "Five Pants" recover the stolen Thompson jewels at a sale of unclaimed express. The thieves are arrested.

Through a Wall of Fire

By Harriett Prescott Spofford.

Zoe, a young girl just out of school, falls in love with Mark Antrobus, but imagines that the young man is in love with her sister, Sylvia. There is a fire, Zoe is rescued by Mark and she finds out just who he is in love with.

U. S. Ship Propaganda in Action

View of the gun deck of a unique branch of the navy, which is incessantly bombarding the youth of the country. The navy maintains a regular advertising bureau from which circulars, etc., are sent out to induce young men to enlist. Illustrations of how the great business is handled.

News and Views of Farmers

A page that interests not only farmers, but the city dwellers as well, as it contains many things of mutual interest. Every idea advanced has been tried and is of known worth.

The Brave Hussar

Is the first story on the beautifully illustrated Boys' and Girls' page. A little child had toddled out in front of the charging troops in the grand review. Its mother is frantic and there is apparently no hope for it. A gallant hussar leans from his horse while at full gallop, sweeps the baby up in front of him and is rewarded by the emperor for his deed.

The Proud Princess is another charming fairy story on this page. She starts out to find the best thing in the world and accepts the Ugly Prince, who has been bewitched by the Black Dwarf.

Two Pages of Colored Comics

UNCLE MUN discovers a buried treasure and is robbed by pirates. By the aid of a sawfish he is rescued and escapes with his gold.

THE LOONY LYRICS OF LULU. Papa tries to catch the Wimple with disastrous results. Lulu writes a lyric about it.

JACK AND JILL IN FAIRYLAND are chased by Mother Hubbard's dog and take refuge with the Old Woman who red in a shoe, and are spanked the same as the rest of the children at bedtime.

PRESIDENT DELANO COMING OCT. 18

Will Make Fall Inspection Trip Over Wabash System.

CHANGE AT THE PENNSY HOTEL

R. D. McCoy Succeeds W.
W. White as the Manager.

Bulletins giving the itinerary of President F. A. Delano and other higher officials of the Wabash on the fall inspection trip have been received here. The party will leave St. Louis on a special train Monday morning, Oct. 17, and come east as far as Lafayette, making frequent stops en route, where they will remain over night. Tuesday they will cover the line between Lafayette and Detroit, going via Toledo, and will inspect the Chicago and Springfield lines Wednesday and Thursday. The party will reach Fort Wayne about 11 o'clock Tuesday and will spend an hour here inspecting track elevation work. With President Delano will be General Manager Henry Miller, General Supt. S. E. Cotter and all of the maintenance of way and traffic officials, as well as the division officials.

OLD SHOPMAN INJURED.

Henry Lagemann Had Leg Broken
Saturday.

Henry Lagemann, of 457 St. Martin's street, one of the old boiler-makers in point of service at the Pennsylvania shops, had his left leg broken below the knee Saturday afternoon. He was in the act of putting a barrel of cider in his cellar by means of a skid made for such purposes and to accomplish it he was at the lower side of the barrel, letting it slide by slow degrees. Suddenly it moved upon him, catching his left leg between the rail of the skid and the side beam and fracturing the bones completely. Mrs. Lagemann went to the assistance of her husband and removed the barrel, when the extent of the accident was discovered. The injured man was taken to the Lutheran hospital. Mr. Lagemann has been employed at the Pennsylvania shops thirty-eight years. Nearly two years ago he was so severely burned about the legs while at work in the shops that he was unable to work for six months and in fact has not fully recovered from the injuries, although he has been working for nearly a year.

NEW BARGE SERVICE.

Pennsylvania Inaugurates Better
Freight Facilities.

In order to facilitate the handling of dressed meats, provisions and other perishable freight in New York harbor, the Pennsylvania railroad has inaugurated a refrigerator barge service. This innovation was adopted after much experimenting as to the best method of handling this character of traffic where it is impracticable to make delivery in the original car and where the company must furnish protection against heat in summer and cold in winter. Ordinarily this protection has been afforded by refrigerator cars. The situation at the port of New York, however, differs from other Atlantic ports in that steamships have no rail connection at their piers and

DAME NATURE HINTS When the Food is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food. The old dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried various kinds of breakfast food, but they were all alike, starchy masses which gave me gas, troubling headaches, I drank green coffee, tea, which seemed to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Tired and head- aches, I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way."

"Grains-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspeptic symptoms."

"There's a reason." "There's a reason." "The Road to Well-Being" is the key.

freight must be delivered by boats. It was to supply this need that the Pennsylvania railroad inaugurated its refrigerator barge service.

STOREKEEPERS HAVE MEETING.

Gather Here to Discuss Material Questions.

The storekeepers of the Northwest system of the Pennsylvania are here for a two or three days' session over the problem of material for use in the shops and on the roads. The meetings are being held in the committee room back of the planing mills, and Division Storekeeper C. P. Cherry, of this city, is presiding. Others taking part in the meeting are Paul J. Zimmerman, of Chicago; C. A. Jackson, of Allegheny; C. C. Blessing, of Cleveland; B. Shipley, of Wellsville; W. S. Soule, of Crestline; W. T. Woschler, of Mahoningtown, and R. Thomas, of Toledo.

PENNSY HOTEL CHANGE.

R. W. McCoy Succeeds W. W. White as Manager.

R. W. McCoy succeeded W. W. White in the management of the Pennsylvania hotel at the depot, this morning. Mr. White will return to Chicago and in a few days resume the work of dining car conductor on the Fort Wayne branch of the system. Mr. McCoy has had charge of the hotel during the winter months for several years. During the summer months he looks after the hotel and restaurant interests at Maxinkuckee for the Pennsylvania. That business has closed for the year and Mr. McCoy returns to his old place at the depot.

PASSENGER CONDUCTORS NOW.

Three Pennsylvania Trainmen Hear
Good News This Morning.

Trainmaster J. F. Patterson this morning informed H. P. Jones, A. P. Smith and W. B. Snyder that they had been advanced from freight to passenger conductors on the Western division of the Pennsylvania. The news came as a pleasing surprise to these men. Each has been in the freight service from fifteen to eighteen years and for at least ten years has been a conductor.

THE PAY DAYS.

Pennsylvania the 19th, Wabash the 20th.

Bulletins announcing the coming of the Pennsylvania and the Wabash paymasters were issued today. The Pennsylvania paymaster will arrive here the night of October 13 and remain until the morning of the 20th and the Wabash paymaster will arrive here Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, October 20.

WILL GIVE EIGHT BALLS.

During the fall and winter months the Electro-Technic band will give eight dances at the Minnet hall, on Washington street, the first on Friday night, October 21. There will be two in November and two in December and one each of the following winter and spring months. A full orchestra will furnish music for the grand march and two-step numbers, while an orchestra will handle the other part of the musical feature. Committees have been appointed as follows: Floor—Frank E. Snyder, Ed Hesser, John Shaffer, reception—M. R. Smith, Ralph Kapp, Roy Rohrbach; program and printing—C. D. Wheeler, Arthur Kynston, Ed Storer; invitation—E. K. Allen, H. P. Scherer, Tony Hauck; general arrangements—C. D. Wheeler, E. K. Allen, Carl Shuler.

HAD ANKLE SPRAINED.

Fred Romary, machinist, was the victim of an accident on the ball grounds yesterday. While sliding into third base he had one of his ankles badly twisted and cannot walk now without a cane. He is a Pennsylvania machinist and a member of the shop ball team. Machinist James Majors was also unable to report for work this morning, having a lame ankle as the result of too vigorous "bouncing" for the shop boys at the game.

C. & P. BOILER EXPLOSION.

A matter of considerable interest in Pennsylvania railway and shop circles was the explosion of a locomotive boiler in the Cleveland yards of the Pittsburgh and Cleveland division of the Pennsylvania Saturday night. The engine and boiler were so badly injured that they may not recover and the present loss is considerable. All work in the boiler shop of the division has been suspended. The engine was being repaired at the time of the explosion.

RAILWAY CARS IN WRECK.

Two cars and two others derailed, with more or less damage, was the result of a runaway in the Wabash yards yesterday morning. A string of cars on a siding on the elevated tracks and moved and rushed down the grade to near Fairfield avenue, where they "skidded" a string of cars being pushed by a switch engine. Fortunately the accident was not a sliding and the main track was not blocked.

BECOMES TICKET SALESMAN

office, becomes assistant ticket agent of the Lake Shore and Lake Erie and Western roads at this point. He succeeds Ray Poulsen, who resigned several weeks ago. Mr. Phillips has conducted the somewhat arduous duties of the office since the resignation of Mr. Poulsen.

BOILERMAKER LYONS RECOVERS

J. G. Lyons, the boilermaker who had an ankle bone broken two months ago when he jumped from a scaffold to prevent falling, has recovered and this morning resumed his duties in the Bass shops. The accident happened at Hartford City when Mr. Lyons was assisting in erecting stacks at the Hartford City paper mills. He jumped a distance of fifteen feet.

HAD ARTERY OPENED.

Fred Muellenbruch, Pennsylvania blacksmith, had an artery in his left leg opened this morning when he was struck by the sharp corner of a valve he was working upon. The wound bled freely, but was not considered serious and as soon as the hemorrhage was stopped, the injured man resumed work.

MAY LOSE AN EYE.

Andrew D. Boan, the Pennsylvania car builder, may lose an eye as a result of an accident last week. While removing a bit from a brace, it came out suddenly and the sharp point entered one of his eyes, cutting the optic badly. An effort is being made to save the sight, but the result is problematical.

PAINT SHOP MEN HERE.

D. W. Smith, foreman of the paint department at Allegheny, and F. E. Kerr, who holds a similar position at the Wellsville shops, are here to confer with Foreman C. E. Graham, of the Pennsylvania shops at this place. Matters connected with shop work are being discussed.

RECEIVING NEW MACHINERY.

This morning a mammoth boiler plate roller and bevel shears was unloaded at the Bass boiler shops and will soon be installed there. This machine will greatly facilitate the work of preparing steel plate for boilers and enable the department to increase the output.

STRUCK BY CRANE HANDLE.

G. Trentadue, a laborer in the shops of the Wabash, had a leg badly bruised yesterday while assisting to lift a heavy weight at the crane west of the machine shop. His hands slipped from the handle and it flew around and struck his limbs. No bones were broken.

TO DAYTON ON BUSINESS.

Foreman Joseph Slater, of the blacksmith shop of the Bass Foundry and Machine works, went to Dayton, O., last night on business for the company. He expects to return home tomorrow morning.

Why be uncomfortable in your home or office at this time of the year when you can have heat and comfort for so small a cost.

As a matter of economy, one of these heaters will pay for itself in a very short time, as it will save you starting your big stove or furnace until the real cold weather sets in.

We do not hesitate to say that we firmly believe these heaters are the best on the market, and that they will give more heat for the amount of oil consumed than any other, and in addition, they have several distinct points of superiority over all others.

We would take great pleasure in showing them up to you and explaining their different points of merit.

MARY MOFFAT PASSES AWAY.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam C. Moffat Dies at Denver.

Friends in Fort Wayne were shocked by the reception of telegrams on Sunday announcing the death of Mary Moffat, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam C. Moffat, which occurred Sunday morning at Denver, Col., where the family has resided for some years and where the father is engaged in newspaper work.

Death was due to typhoid fever, and it came at a time when the patient was believed to be safely convalescing after an illness of five weeks at a hospital in Denver. The lovable young girl was 15 years of age, and had but reached the threshold of a young womanhood of unusual beauty and promise, manifesting to a conspicuous degree the vocal musical talent with which her gifted mother is endowed. As a child she was widely known and admired in Fort Wayne, and the sympathy of many friends here will go out to the sorrowing parents in their bereavement.

Good news for the home makers who want new rugs this fall

Two Special Rug Values for the Week

No written description could convey an adequate idea of the beauty of the new rugs. The blending of colors is so harmonious, the designs are so beautiful, that a matter of paper and type cannot do them justice. Some of them are like an immense Persian or Paisley shawl, with the same rich colors and designs. Others have small intricate designs to produce an all-over effect that is at once lovely and practical.

For this week only we present two very special values in room-size rugs, selected from our immense stock. Every home-maker who has need of a new rug this fall will be interested in these offerings, once they are investigated.

$29.00 Body Brussels Rugs, Special at $24.48

The patterns in this special line of Body Brussels Rugs are suitable for living rooms and dining rooms particularly, although there are others equally adapted for parlors and bedrooms. They are an excellent grade of that sturdy, wear-resisting Body Brussels, in colors that are just as service-giving as the weave. They are all 9x12 feet, and are marked to sell regularly at $29.00.

Special This Week $24.48

$49.00 Wilton Rugs, Special at $42.00

Looking through this special line of Wilton Rugs is like turning the pages of a book of lovely color plates. They are really floor pictures, so beautiful are the designs and rich colorings. They are of extra heavy quality Wilton, and the patterns are desirable for any room in the house where a handsome floor covering is wanted. The Oriental effects are more prominent, of course, but there are also some charming floral patterns. Size 9x12 feet; marked to sell regularly at $49.00. Special This Week $42.00

BILL BARLOW IS DEAD.

Author of "Sage Brush Philosophy" Has Passed From Earth.

Douglas, Wyo., Oct. 10.—M. C. (Bill) Barlow, editor of Sage Brush Philosophy, and an apostle of the "red corpuscle push," died here last night following a sudden attack of heart disease.

Barlow, who was fifty years old, was city editor of the Laramie Boomerang when that sheet was famous under Bill Nye. When Nye left the Boomerang Barlow succeeded him as editor.

Barlow began to attract attention about fifteen years ago when he commenced the publication of "Sage Brush Philosophy," a magazine abounding in quaint humor and pithy sayings.

NEW REPUBLIC INFIDEL.

Cardinal Logue Denounces Uprising in Portugal.

New York, Oct. 10.—His eminence, Cardinal Logue, primate of Ireland, took occasion during a short talk to some ten thousand Catholic men, who attended a mass meeting in St. Patrick's cathedral last night, to denounce the newly born republic of Portugal as an enemy of the church. The two other speakers, His Grace Archbishop Farley and Rev. Dr. D. J. Kennedy, of the Catholic university at Washington, made no reference to the revolution.

"We live in an evil age," said Cardinal Logue, "an age of materialism, an age where men's minds are given to materialistic pursuits. The latest instance of this is the new political crisis in Portugal. One of the first acts of these men was to turn themselves against the church and to expel the nuns and the monks—the servants of the church. That is an instance of how men act in the present day. Ostensibly the new government in Portugal was started in the name of freedom, but in reality it was a blow against the church. It is an infidel movement. No doubt about that."

Earlier in the day, in preaching at St. Patrick's cathedral, the cardinal said that the United States is the only republic existing that is a credit to republican institutions.

"You have perfect freedom here," he said, "and you have God respected by those outside the church and by your rulers. But there are two dangers that threaten here—the danger of prosperity and the matter of mixed marriages."

If It's a Good Thing, Seavey's Have It!

SPECIAL

A Stewart Base-Burner, $29.75 with 15-inch fire pot.

IT SEEMS a little bit bold sometimes for us to always be advising folks what to buy. We would be almost tempted to quit if we didn't know how much real good we are doing by PREACHING SEAVEY'S.

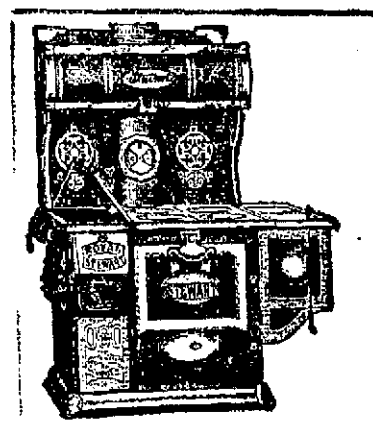

Seavey's mission in life is to sell the best hardware and stoves that's made and to keep as many people as possible from buying anywhere else, and we're really doing pretty well at that, thanks to the general patronage of our friends.

Now, this is the time of the year when you begin to devise ways and means for this winter's heat (which surely is a perplexing subject.) Therefore, let us make you a proposition on one of the best heating stoves manufactured. We believe that we can furnish you with one of the famous Fuller-Warren Baseburners which will cut down the cost of heating your house from 25 to 30 per cent. and at the same time give you three times as much heat as you can get from any common stove.

This the Stewart Base-Burner will do and we are here to guarantee it. We would be pleased to have you come in and let us demonstrate this to you; for the privilege is yours to thoroughly examine the stove before you make the purchase.

65 different patterns of stoves to select from are exhibited on our floor, with all prices in plain figures. It will be to your interest to see them before you buy.

A small deposit will secure for you one of these excellent stoves.
